

The UR Chapel, open from 8 a.m to 11 p.m.

Newman Community Involved, Busy at UR

By NORENE SCHANNING University of Rochester, '73

Have you wondered what religious life is like at a secular university? Is it non-existent, as present day reports about college students would indicate?

Or is there an alert group of interested and concerned collegians who actively participate in liturgical events? I am a sophomore co-ed who can happily say that the latter is true.

The Newman Community at the University of Rochester hopes to provide the climate and resources to help a college student become the mature Christian needed in today's world. It does so by allowing students to air their views and emotions on all the perplexing topics that face youth today.

Father James Lawlor and Sister Ann Norwood are the fultime chaplains. A parish council composed of graduate and undergraduate students sponsors a variety of programs ranging from social action to educational, to just plain fun.

A large tutoring program with inner city youngsters, liturgical groups, coffee hours, Sunday suppers, seminars and weekend retreats form the year's activities.

Now, for the first time, the religious programs of the university are centralized in one building. First imagined in 1950 by Virginia and Gilbert McCurdy, the Interfaith Chapel was formally dedicated May 24 and it has since been open to serve its community.

Newman, Hillel and United Protestant Federation share the building and jointly sponsor social service projects; participate in peace activities; and sponsor a wide variety of speakers and seminars.

On the wooded bank of the Genesee River, the chapel is surrounded by nature, yet its position on the Eastman Quadrangle boldly expresses the importance of religion in education. Open daily from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. the chapel has a community room with continuous supply of coffee and the chaplains' offices.

Mass is celebrated daily at 4:30 p.m. Sunday Masses are Saturday at 5 p.m. and Sunday at 9:15 and 11 a.m.

Have you visited our store recently?

We now have an excellent selection of Thanksgiving centerpieces made up—as well as materials to make your own.

Our "Yule Tree Shop" is now open, with many unique ideas and materials to do your own Holiday arrangements or buy them made up (including beautiful weather-proof ribbon by the yard or bolt).

Artificial wreaths, door pieces, trees.

Gift Certificates for a "Living Gift".

Living trees which can be planted out after the Holidays. (A very popular and practical idea.)

Sometime during the week of November 23rd, we will have our own select cut trees and wreaths.
