Bishop Kearney Talks of Peace

"The only place where peace is to be found . . . is on our knees."

So declared retired Bishop James E. Kearney during a Memorial Mass on Veterans' Day, Nov. 11, in St. Mary's Church, Rochester.

More than 200 persons attended the 9 a.m. Mass, including families of men killed in Vietnam, and Gold Star, Air Force and War Mothers escorted by American Legion members.

Speaking strongly for peace, Bishop Kearney declared "no organization in the world today . . . is doing as much to bring peace to the world as our Church."

"How tragic it is to see the wasted efforts of some to bring peace," he said, naming university disruptions and disregard for law by others. "How sad it is we have to listen to it and tolerate it." He regretted those who forget the suffering and dying of their fellowmen in the nation's cause.

The withering of a sense of patriotism is, Bishop Kearney declared, "one of the tragic features of our lifetime."

A 15-minute ceremony at the city's War Memorial followed the Mass, during which the 15 wreaths were placed at the plaque of war dead by local veterans' organizations and their auxiliaries.

methods of Legion home visits. Group leaders will include Fathers Frederick Eisemann, Andrew Teuschel, Vincent Collins and Thomas Wheeland; Mrs. Nahoma Frazier and Miss Geraldine Crowley.
