2 Offices Go to Problems

By CECELIA VIGGO

"Landscaping" and "merchandising" are two summer ventures for two inner-city offices of the Catholic Family Center.

Project Cleanup is the brainchild of Richard Williams, director of the office based at Immaculate Conception school; Tom Honold, who directs an office at St. Bridget's Church, and Bernard Houllhan, social worker at the Catholic Family Center, who organized a distribution center at St. Bridget's for used clothing and furniture.

Project Cleanup employs 19 inner-city teenagers at $1.85 an hour. A college student, and a recently returned veteran, are team leaders.

"Goal is the beautification of the 3rd Ward," Williams said. The cleanup team will work fulltime for eight weeks, concentrating on the neighborhood's "visual sore spots": cleaning and mowing lawns, sweeping, shoveling and bagging.

Williams explained that the program had three goals: to improve the area, provide some financial help to hard-pressed families, and promote group and personal responsibility among neighborhood young people.

The distribution center at St. Bridget's was spearheaded by the work of SPIRIT, a group of about 25 volunteers from St. Louis parish, Pittsford, Houllhan reported.

The Center staff collects usable clothing and furniture and distributes them at its "store" in St. Bridget's basement.

"We have the use of a truck, thanks to the Office of Human Development," Tom Honold commented, "and are able to pick up donations three times a week."

Although items are not "sold", there is a maximum service charge of a quarter for clothing and $5 for furniture," Houllhan explained. "This is done to insure better service; every cent realized is used to improve our operation."

The center serves only those referred by social service agencies and churches. Since each customer makes a "shopping appointment", he is insured highly personalized service.

Catholic Family Center established three offices in the inner city four years ago in order to be close to the people who need help.

Each office is staffed by a social worker, and two or three family workers — people from the area with a first-hand knowledge of its problems.

Aside from working on a one-to-one basis with individual clients, the inner city staff often faces problems that affect the community — unemployment, lack of housing, poor environment.

Consumer Center Opens

Rochester Gas & Electric Corp. began a Consumer Information Center on the main floor of its 89 East Ave. offices Monday.

Operated by the Home Service Department, the center will offer consumers a broad range of comparative information on such areas as detergents, appliances and storing techniques.

An RG&E home economist will be available during specific periods to lecture, distribute information and answer questions about consumer affairs.

MERCY PARISH SETS PICNIC

Our Lady of Mercy parish will hold its annual family picnic on Sunday, July 25, on the church grounds. A huge tent will house the food and activities for the event, slated to start at 1:30 p.m.

There will be games for adults and children. Ed Maloney, general chairman, said tickets will be offered after all Masses beginning this Sunday.

available in the center at all times during RG&E office hours. The center will be manned by home economists Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Tuesdays from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Each month the CIC will feature detailed information on a specific category of appliance. In this instance, home economists will provide information on how to get the best service from your present appliance, its care or replacement.

During the first month, the center will feature information on home freezers and food storage, including techniques on how to prepare and wrap foods for freezing.
