

Farewell Party

Child Actors Sought For 'Pooh' Production

Tryouts for child actors eager to be in "Pooh Loves You," a musical recreation of A.A. Milne's classic Winnie the Pooh, which will have two performances during the September "Celebration of Communication" at Mercy Auditorium, are set for 4 p.m. next Wednesday, July 28, at Mercy.

Mrs. Jean Lane, director of the children's theater feature of the week-long program planned by the Sisters of Mercy, is looking for youngsters to play the role of Roo (kangaroo), Christopher Robin and a number of "small forest animals."

The week extolling communication opens with a lecture by David Brinkley, NBC newscaster on Sunday, Sept. 19, and will include a concert by the Rochester Philharmonic (on the 26th), the Chuck Mangione Quartet (on the 25th), an international folk dance festival (on the 21st), and an evening featuring a film-classic and a famous movie star (on the 22nd).

The children's theater programs will be Friday evening, and Saturday morning, Sept. 24-25.

"Our production will use seven adults and a number of children," Mrs. Lane explained. "Roo and Christopher Robin should be vibrant and lively, look about 9 years old and have had some stage experience. The small animal types have no lines but should have pantomimic experience."

Mrs. Lane, who has authored the adoption of the Pooh story she will direct, is associated with Mrs. Charles Chadwick who has composed original music for the 90-minute children's show.

Mrs. Lane has directed for the Rochester Community Player and Blackfriars. Mrs. Chadwick, a music teacher, is also a composer of musical scores for children.

BOB CONSIDINE

On the Line

Whenever Willie Stargell slams another home run somebody prints a piece stating that the Pirates' slugger is so many days ahead of Babe Ruth's pace as the Babe moved onward toward his mark of 60 for the 154-game schedule of 1971.

Nobody ever gets around to comparing Stargell to Roger Maris, as Maris progressed toward his 61 homers in the 162-game season of 1961.

Poor Maris! The average baseball fan with any years on him resents the fact that he broke the Babe's record—a record that had withstood the assaults of Jimmie Foxx, Hack Wilson, Hank Greenberg, Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams, Willie Mays, Mickey Mantle and all the others who could hit the ball a country mile. Sometimes, Maris must feel that the only mark on his tombstone, when he goes to his eternal rest, will be an asterisk.

He made the mistake of painting a better Mona Lisa.

Lee Trevino is the luckiest golfer now alive. If it had been Ben Hogan that Lee threw the rubber snake at, on the first tee of the playoff for the U.S. Open, instead of Jack Nicklaus, Ben would have carved a large divot out of Lee's noggin.

I was trying to remember something for days, then it came. What I was trying to remember was to pick up a soft-cover copy of William D. Hersey's "How to Cash in on Your Hidden Memory Power." (Awards Books).

The author, who can rattle off the last 1,000 closing prices on any day's Stock Market Report, after a brief scanning, marked some passages he felt pertinent to me:

"Memory is the heart of business and social success. Those who have so-called 'good' memories are the ones who benefit. They collect the cash and the prestige in the offices, the factories, in public office, and in the community . . .

"No such thing as a 'bad' memory exists. We either have a trained or an untrained one. It is as simple as that. Anyone who wants to remember can train his mind to remember . . .

"Your memory is the 'bank' of your mind. The experiences through which you live, the facts and ideas you accumulate, and the teachings you master are all stored in the vaults of your memory bank . . . No civilization, no human life can exist without memory . . .

"The ability to recall a name or fact or phone number at the snap of a finger is to have the ability to produce Memory Power . . .

"In order to develop a thinking-machine memory you must adopt a system and then follow it. The method I have employed has enabled me to successfully perform many mental feats that others thought were sheer wizardry. This is hardly the truth. I merely practiced a memory or mnemonic (nee-MON-ick) system. You are about to learn this same system. Just as a man with poor vision uses eyeglasses to help him see better, so you and I can use these mnemonic devices to improve our ability to remember."

Would send you my copy, but can't remember where I left it.
