BOB CONSIDINE
On the Line

New York children of the not too distant future will have a revised prayer to say each night as they kneel at the side of their beds. It will be in keeping with Fun City's extraordinary effort to claw its way out of the red ink by means of gambling. It will go like this:

Now I lay me down to slumber,
I pray to God I hit the number,
If I should die before I wake,
Please put a buck on 208.

What, pray tell, can be more obscene than a beauty contest? I always thought the nadir was annually probed in the Miss America competition at Atlantic City, with dear old Bert Parks burbling and a Niagara of tears sloshing in the ducts of the winner and runner-up. But the Miss Universe bit from Miami Beach this time was even more dismaying. I felt so sorry for the poor dolls, forlorn and lonely in the alien corn, who were ordered through their asinine rituals. Particularly sad was the sort of raffling off of the 12 "semi-finalists," the m.c. called them, in their bathing suit scene. It was as demeaning as a 42nd Street "live" peep show. Specials of this nature can only serve to make the raucous Women's Lib movement an appreciated political force, and Rep. Bella Abzug my favorite pin-up girl.

P.S.—Miss Israel got robbed!

Air Force colonels David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Major Alfred M. Worden are three of the rarest of a rare breed. Only 7 per cent of the 800,000 members of the U.S. Air Force are pilots, and only some hard-ly discernible fraction of the 7 per cent have had — like the Apollo crew—test pilot experience. An even less discernible fraction of the test pilots are accepted astronauts, and of the 50 astronauts now on NASA's rolls, only Scott, Irwin and Worden are working.

Scott outdoes even those mind-boggling odds. He is the son of an Air Force general and is married to an Air Force general's daughter. He was the first child born of an officer at Randolph Air Base, Texas, and guess what his middle name is? Darn, you guessed it —Randolph!

Home Heating Featured at Consumer Information Center

RG&E heating expert, Jim Schiano, explains a point to interested customer.

Forgive us if we seem a bit confused with the seasons, but we'd like to talk about heating your home. In the middle of August? Yes. You see, now is the best time to make certain that your heating equipment is in good operating order, not on a frosty September morning when the mercury tells us fall is here and there is no heat because of old or poorly maintained heating equipment.

Now is also the time to find out how to end those dry, itchy skin problems in winter with proper humidification in your home, or how better insulation can end drafty hallways and cold corners while saving you money on your fuel bills.

August is the month to ask RG&E any questions concerning home heating and air control. During August, our Consumer Information Center, on the main floor of our offices at 89

East Avenue, will be staffed by heating experts who will field any questions you have about heating your home, whether they're on furnaces, weather-proofing, insulation, ventilation or what have you.

We're not out to sell heating equipment. We do not sell, install or service heating equipment. We're only interested in seeing that you remain comfortable throughout the long Rochester winter and that you do so economically. We feel that a little precaution now can insure a warm, cozy home all winter long.

Hours.

Stop in at RG&E's Consumer Information Center soon and pick up some helpful tips on winterizing your home. It's open 11 A.M. to 3 P.M. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and from 7 to 8:30 P.M. on Tuesday evening.

Our Consumer Information Center is always staffed to answer any questions you may have about appliances, home heating, wiring and lighting.
