Dansville Family Hosts Foreign Exchange Student

By PEGGY PEASE

Dansville — Mr. and Mrs. Jack Vogt and their four children of 23 Health St. recently welcomed a new addition to their family. A "sister" to Carol, Michael, Lorraine and Douglas Vogt during the next

Mrs. Felix Benzoni left, and Mrs. Walter O'Donnell, chairmen of St. James Mercy Hospital's Resale Shop, stand in front of their store at 433 Canisteo St. The shop was razed August 10 to make more parking room for the hospital. It is slated to reopen tomorrow (Thursday) at 410 Canisteo St. The shop deals in items donated by St. James Auxiliary members and their friends and handles "anything that will sell."

school year is pretty, dark haired Marcia Lourido of Colombia, South America, who will be a senior at Dansville Central High School as this year's Foreign Exchange Student in the area.

The Vogts are parishioners of St. Mary's Church. Marcia is the daughter of a Colombian neurosurgeon, Dr. Francisco Lourido, and her mother, Liselotte Rothenpieler De Lourido, is of Austrian birth. There are two other children in their family, Christina, 14, and Francisco, 13. Marcia is Catholic, has studied English for six years and speaks Spanish and German. She spent one year in Austria and has said she came to the U.S. to "know the American way of life and the English language." She plans to continue her studies in her homeland and is most interested in psychology and sociology.

Telling the Vogts about herself, Marcia recently wrote that she attended kindergarten, elementary and high school until graduating from Colegio Aleman in Cali, Colombia. "My father," she said, "spent one year in Austria where I went to school without any difficulties regarding the language. I dominate the Spanish and German language and speak English well."

The professional tradition in her family has been medicine on both her father's and mother's side.

"The sport I like best is swimming and I have taken part in several school competences. I also took part in athletics where I won several honors. I like all kinds of music and play the piano. I love to be among people and prefer to do things with a group," she wrote.

Florida Students Help Project REACH

Perkinsville — A group of 27 Florida high school students devoted a week of their summer vacation to Project REACH.

Under the sponsorship of the Florida Conference of the United Church of Christ, the group recently spent a week-long work seminar here to learn how social problems are dealt with and to lend a hand in the work.

It was the second year the group, made up of students from several areas of Florida, has participated in the program.

While in New York, they did painting and carpentry work on three houses of REACH's Self-Help Housing program near Avoca; cleaned and painted rooms used for Migrant Day Care in Perkinsville; painted a boarding house room in Wayland and cleaned the Perkinsville health clinic in preparation for the three weekly clinics during the migrant season.

The trip was organized and
