

Scout Banners

Scoutmaster Fred Farmer looks on with pipe in hand while seminarian Greg Morey helps the boys of Troop 175 make banners for the afternoon Masses held at the annual Boy Scout retreat at St. Bernard's Seminary last weekend.

'Take Time'

For the annual Catholic scout retreat at St. Bernard's Seminary last weekend, the theme "Take Time" was chosen from Ecclesiastes 3:17: "For everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak."

During the three-day camp-out and retreat, seminarians from St. Bernard's took groups from the campsite across Lake Avenue to the seminary grounds for retreat programs.

Each seminarian group leader was responsible for developing a program or workshop on Saturday for 8 to 10 Scouts.

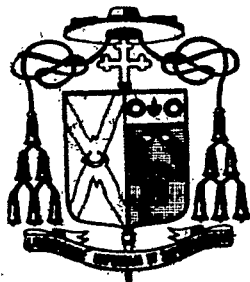

About 500 Boy Scouts and 98 adult Scout Leaders from around the diocese took part.

Scouts "took time" to appreciate God through prayer, their fellow men as a mission and the ecology of man's God-given environment.

Small group Masses were celebrated Saturday evening, and Father Joseph P. Brennan, rector of St. Bernard's, celebrated the Community Eucharist Sunday.

Seminarians were encouraged to camp out with their assigned troop.

Father Nolan Scholarship Fund Set

A recent meeting of St. Stephen's Parish Council unanimously agreed that Father Raymond P. Nolan's memory be perpetuated through the establishment of The Father Nolan Scholarship Fund. The former pastor of St. Stephen's died Sept. 7.

Interest on the principle of the fund will be available each year, depending on the size of the fund, to St. Stephen's parishioners (parochial and public school graduates) who may want to enroll in DeSales High School and who can meet its academic requirements.

The fund will be administered by the education committee of the Parish Council and the Board of Education of DeSales High School. Primary consideration will be given those with financial problems.

Business In the Diocese

Peter J. Consol has been named vice president and general manager and Joseph P. Campione sales manager of Pepsi-Cola Rochester Bottlers, Inc.

Consol is directly responsible for all internal and external operations including production, vending and marketing. Campione, who succeeds Consol as the top sales executive, was formerly assistant sales manager.

Consol began his career with the Rochester Pepsi-Cola organization in 1955 and served in a number of management positions before being named sales manager. He was elected vice president in 1965.

Campione, a 25-year veteran of the Rochester beverage market, began as a production and warehousing employe. Transferring to sales shortly thereafter, he rose through the ranks to become assistant sales manager in 1966.

Our Parish COUNCIL

by Bernard Lyons

Councils are succeeding, for the most part, in increasing communication and fuller participation in the parish.

These themes are spelled out regularly in answers to the question I have been asking in a survey, "How has the parish council changed your life?"

"It has given me a knowledge and appreciation of the tremendous task and responsibility of running a parish. In this full-range, decision-making council, having a real part in 'turning the parish wheels,' I have come closer to the Church — both as it is 'structure' and as 'people,'" writes a council member from Nashville, Tenn.

From Savannah, Ga.: "Has made me personally more aware of problems of the priests and the administration of the parish."

A parishioner from Covington, Ky., says the council has given him "more voice in all matters" and "better understanding."

Even parish activists gain in insight and often are urged to more activity, according to a respondent from Canastota, N.Y.: "As I have always been active in parish activities, the parish council has not really changed my life. The council has given me insight as to the real problems confronting the pastor and the urge to be more active."

A woman from Saginaw, Mich., was pleased that she was "elected to the chairmanship of a parish council dominated by men," and "it has also given me the opportunity of initiating programs of action."

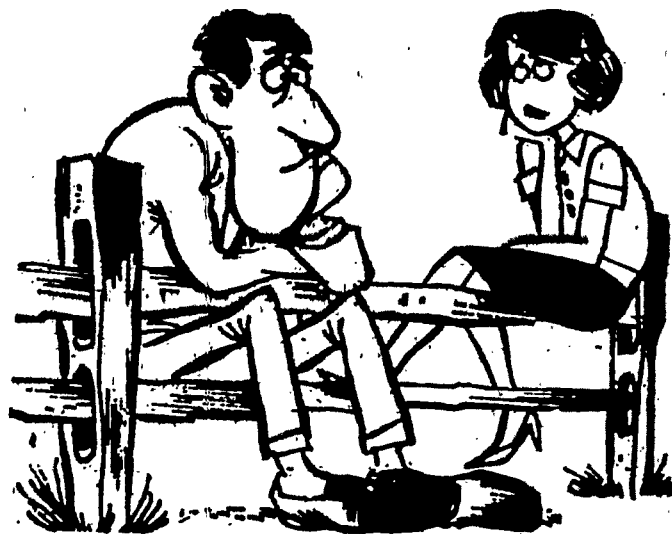

Parish council participation would also seem to increase awareness of the diocese, as expressed by this member from Portland, Maine: "I am more aware of the workings of the diocese. I have much admiration for its organization and of our leaders' great understanding of our needs."

Many people find the council activity rewarding. A Brooklyn member writes: "It has involved me in the activity of the Church and provided social reward. Most of my neighborhood friends have been made through the parish council steering committee, the council itself, or its committees. I have also gotten to know all four priests better."

The council can also be over-involving. Another council member from Brooklyn complains: "Occupies much of my time to the exclusion of most other evening activity because of meetings, etc."

An Evansville, Ind., member succinctly states that the parish council has made him "too involved" and "miserable."
