

A BISHOP IS A PRIEST: above, his daily morning Mass; right, a funeral Mass; and below, a concelebrated Mass with the St. Bernard's graduates.

THE BISHOP

rec-
legs
ob,"

but

nily
lave

vate
t of

'asts
ved
him
ked

hief
f 50

ings
hule
mes

ing
con.
s in

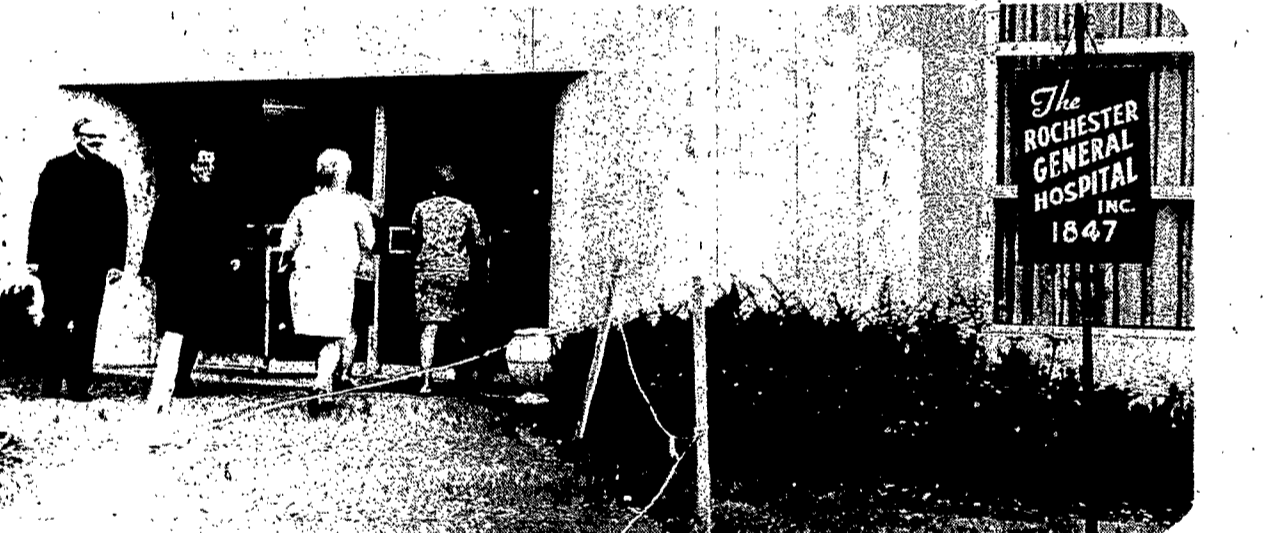

Afterwards, when the Bishop has given his personal condolences to the family, he decides to stop off at Rochester General Hospital to visit a couple of nuns and the husband of a woman who works in the Pastoral Office.

After lunch, Bishop Hogan retires to the study in his quarters and spends the afternoon working on drafts of several columns, statements and pastoral letters. In this solitude he has time to compose, strike out and re-write.

Throughout the day, when there is an extra minute, the Bishop reads his breviary as required of a priest of Christ.

The day draws to a close with another Mass, this time concelebrated with priests who graduated from St. Bernard's Seminary in the classes of 1950 and 1951, followed by an official dinner.

After the guests have left, there is more work in the study and perchance some reading or television before retiring,

ON THE GO: a visit to Rochester General, above, after the funeral. Left, Bishop Hogan packs his vestments and, below, heads for the car with Father Conboy after celebrating the Mass of the Resurrection.

