

Day Care Program Open For Migrant Children

Perkinsville — Potato season is here and the harvesting has started.

About 1,500 migrant agricultural workers have arrived to join in the harvest in northern Steuben County.

While the workers are in the field each day, their children attend nearby schools or journey to one of the day care centers in the area.

"Day Care in Perkinsville is in its fourth year at Project REACH, Inc.," Mrs. Ruth Brown, REACH educational specialist said. "We have a highly qualified staff this year to serve our 50 enrollees."

The Perkinsville Day Care for migrant children is being directed by Miss Bernadette Guzzardo, formerly of Utica. The children have been divided into two groups: infants and pre-schoolers. According to Miss Guzzardo, ten of the enrolled children are Algonquin Indians whose parents are laborers at the Bennett and Saxby Fur Farms in Bloomfield. There are ten migrant camps in the Wayland-Dansville-Springwater area using the day care center facility in Perkinsville.

Attendance has averaged 20 children per day during September, and an increase is expected as the potato harvest becomes more intense. The children's daily routine begins with breakfast after 7 a.m. arrival. Formal instruction, art projects, table activities and rhythmic exercises fill the schedule.

Evaluation by daily records are kept and shared with the parents at the end of the season.

Migrant Day Care at Perkinsville is funded this year by Federal grant and administered through the Center for Migrant Studies in Geneseo. Many private sources who have contributed are Gunlocke Chairs, Champion Knitwear, Vitale Brothers Construction, Big Tree Lumber, and area residents and merchants from Wayland and Dansville.

"Without these contributions, our developmental activities for the children would be much less than they are," said Miss Guzzardo. More donations of sorted clothing in good condition, useable toys and warm blankets may be delivered to the Community Service Center, in Wayland.

Assisting Miss Guzzardo as teachers are Sandy Morris, a 1971 graduate in elementary education from the University of Minnesota, and Virginia Westervelt, a 1971 graduate of Geneseo in early childhood education.

Present facilities in Perkinsville, in two rooms at Project REACH Center, are crowded Mrs. Brown said. "Our search for other quarters has been our one failing — we have just not found a facility suitable or which would be permitted for our use."

Hornell Sisters In the News

Colleen T. Norton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Norton of Hornell, a student in the School of Nursing at Niagara University, was one of 92 students to receive her cap during the Ceremony of Dedication held Sunday, Oct. 10.

Her sister, Mary Frances Norton, has been appointed assistant dean of students at Brockport State University. She is a 1971 graduate of Brockport with baccalaureate in mathematics.
