

Winter Sports

Preparing for "The Snow Ball," Father Steve Martin of Aquinas tries a fake snow ball for size to help Mrs. Julius McNutt, right, and Mrs. Harry Fornorola with the decorating scheme. The dance will begin at 9 Saturday night, Jan. 15, at Kearney Hall on the St. John Fisher campus. Mr. and Mrs. Fornorola are chairmen for APACE, the Aquinas parents' organization.

St. Bernard's Adds Two Courses

Two new courses, especially designed for those interested in contemporary theology, will be part of the offerings next semester at St. Bernard's Seminary.

In an effort to help students better understand the theological statements and insights made by modern film directors, a course on "Religious Themes in Modern Film" is planned around the viewing and discussion of 10 full-length films. Class time is Tuesday evenings from 7:30-10:30 in the auditorium of Colgate/Bexley/Crozer, 1100 S. Goodman St. Included will be such works as Persona (Bergman), Blow-up (Antonioni), Mare/Sade (Brook), Alphonse (Goddard), 8½ (Fellini), and Night and Fog (Renais).

The discussions will be led by a team made up of Professors Joseph Kelly (St. Bernard's), and Jesse Brown and John Skoglund (Colgate/Bexley/Crozer).

For those interested in Jewish thought, "Foundations in Judaism" will be offered by Dr. Gershon Greenberg, a visiting professor at the University of Rochester. This course, Wednesday evening from 7 to 8:50 p.m. at St. Bernard's, will concentrate on the Classical (70 AD-700 AD) rabbinic view of the world and its divergence from Christianity. Major themes such as the transcendence and immanence of God, the cosmic Torah, creation, man's ethical situation, prayer and exchatology will be explored. In light of this study, contemporary issues such as Zionism and anti-semitism will be considered.

Other courses being offered include: Religious Thought in India and China (Msgr. Shannon) Monday 7 to 8:50 p.m.; Social Work for Priests (Msgr. Burns) Tuesday 1:10 to 3 p.m.; Business Ethics (Father Logan) Tuesday 3:10 - 5 p.m.; Issues in Medical Ethics (Father Logan) Wednesday 1:10-3 p.m.; History of the Liturgy (Msgr. Burns) Wednesday 4:10-6 p.m.; Theory and Techniques of Counseling (Dr. Pino) Thursday 1:30-3 p.m.; Music and Christian Worship (Mr. Donohue) 1:10-3 p.m.

Priests and other persons academically qualified may register for courses. These courses, as well as the regular core courses, may be taken as part of the Baccalaureate in Divinity Program for Priests (B.D.) or merely as informal continuing education.

Application can be made by telephoning the academic dean (254-2356), 9 a.m.-12 and 1 to 4 p.m., or by writing to Rev. David M. Murphy, St. Bernard's Seminary, 2260 Lake Ave., Rochester, N.Y. 14612. Classes begin Monday, February 7.

Red Wing Chiefs To Speak at AQ

Joe Altobelli, manager, and Carl Steinfeldt, general manager of the Rochester Red Wings, will share the rostrum, Tuesday, Jan. 18, at the Aquinas Sports Boosters' dinner.

They will give a pre-view of the 1972 Red Wings and point out highlights of last year, when the club captured the International League championship and went on to win the Little World Series.

Sporting News recently singled out the two for their contribution to the Wings' success. Altobelli, in his first year as TRIPLE A Manager of the Year, and Steinfeldt, also in his first year as general manager, was named Executive of the Year.

An Italian dinner will be served at Aquinas at 7:30 p.m. after cocktails at 6:30. Reservations may be made through the school at 254-2020.

Lukewarm Reaction

As a result of a questionnaire to all the priests in the diocese they concluded that there is a real need for a permanent diaconate, but the need is restricted to a comparatively small percentage of parishes, and three out of six of the special ministries of the diocese.

Msgr. Cocuzzi, pastor of Holy Family parish, 415 Ames St., reported that the priests of his bloc see "no demonstrative need in the diocese for such a program."

Father Joseph Brennan, rector of St. Bernard's, reminded the group that the Council of Inner City Parishes recommended that the Priests' Council urge Bishop Hogan to institute a diocesan office for the permanent diaconate responsible for the establishing of a program of recruitment and training of black and Puerto Rican men for the diaconate.

"They have formally requested it so we must take it seriously," Father Brennan explained, "no matter what our blocs or we as individuals say. To say we don't need it is based on ignorance."

Father Charles Mulligan, director of the Office of Human Development, pointed out that the Church has always sought to develop a native clergy among culturally different peoples as the best way of enriching them with Christianity and integrating them into the hierarchy of the Church.

He moved that the Council of Inner City Parishes or other sectors of the pastoral ministry be asked to elaborate and specify the clerical role of what they mean by the diaconate role; and that the seminary investigate training possibilities for the permanent diaconate. The motion was accepted.
