

Father Charles Latus pours the wine for the Mass he celebrated with 7th and 8th graders at Blessed Sacrament school as culmination of their mini-course on "The People of God." George Walker, below, who ran the course, burns incense with papers having the intentions of the students written on them. Intentions are thus mingled, he stressed, with the Church's symbol of prayer.

Pupils Devise a Mass In Church-City Workshop

Junior high students at Blessed Sacrament concluded an eight week workshop on the Church with a Mass of their own making, Friday, Feb. 4.

"The 17 students who chose to study the church in the city learned that the church is more than the building next door."

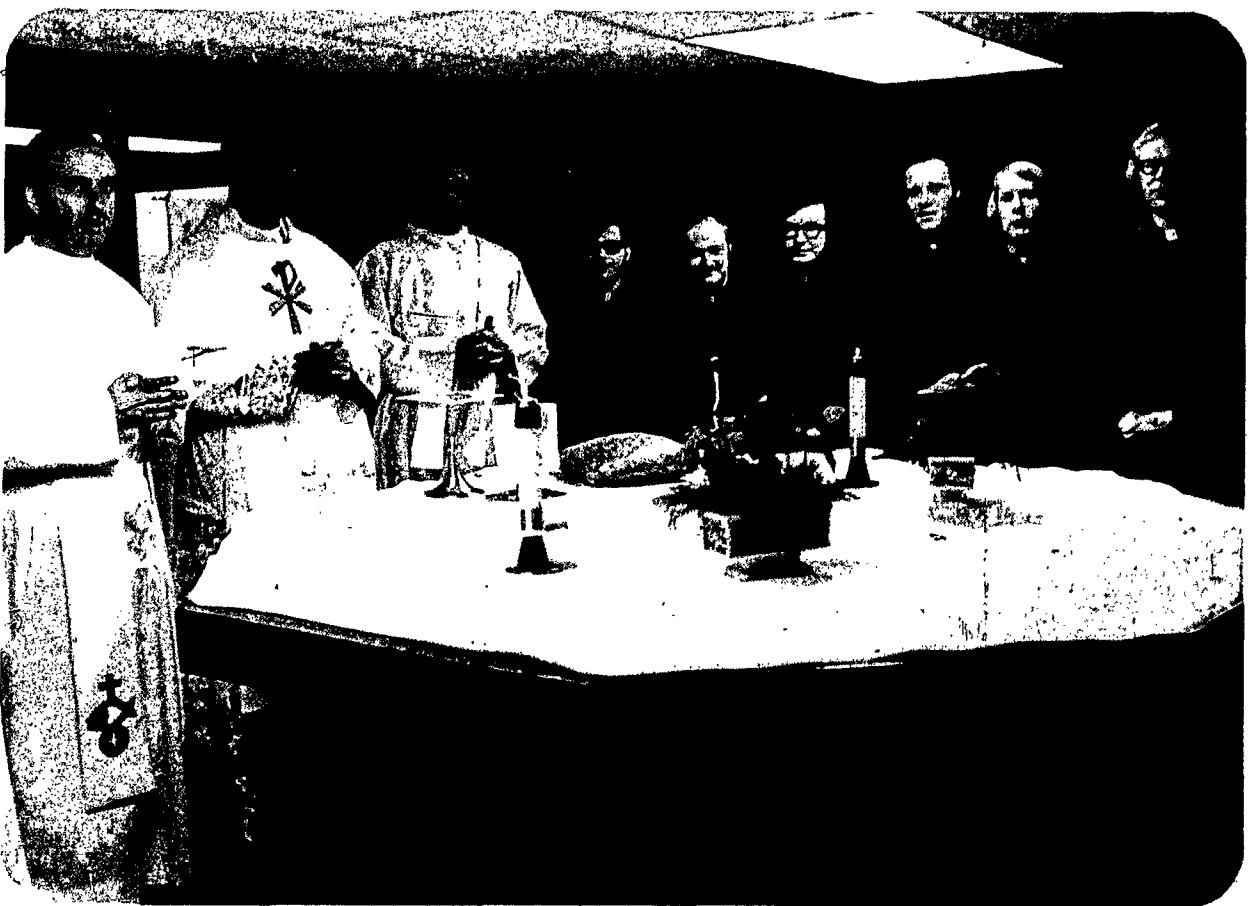

Sister Eleanor, principal, said. "And they wanted to conclude their study with their own Mass."

They chose the readings, one boy wrote and gave the homily and another baked the bread for the Eucharist.

There were six other workshops: poetry, art, sports, psychology, drugs, and sewing.

"From the youngsters' comments," Sister Eleanor reported, "they seem very pleased. They always look forward to Friday afternoons when they get to work on their workshops."

Bishop's Mass for Deacons

Rochester deacons completing their year of internship before ordination joined Bishop Joseph L. Hogan at his residence in Victor for Mass and dinner the evening of February 3. Left to right are Father Edward Steinkirchner, Bishop Hogan, and deacons Edward Palumbos, Lou Vasile, Jack Zimmerman, David Fedor, Robert Rice, Gary Shaw and Ronald Stacy.

Father Bauer's New Book

Homilies for Your Children

Little Lessons to Live By, by E. Charles Bauer (Concordia, 1972)

When bulldozing nonsense out of seminarians' heads, the late professor of education at St. Bernard's Seminary, Msgr. Joseph Grady, constantly cited the work and writings of his pupil Charlie Bauer, as exemplary of imitation for anyone seriously engaged in communication.

Father Bauer, the director of Rochester's Bosco House, a center for educating and ministering to the spiritual needs of the handicapped, has a new book out which certainly would have won Msgr. Grady's plaudits and already has captured kudos from no less than Archbishop Fulton Sheen and the eminent Lutheran preacher, Dr. Oswald C. J. Hoffmann.

Little Lessons is a book of homilies for each Sunday in the Church year and its major festivals. What makes the book different is that the homilies are geared to children.

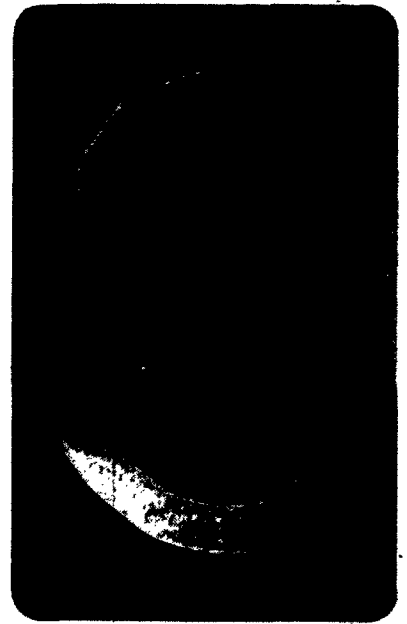

In reminding his youthful audience that "God Will Always Take Care of You," Father Bauer finds an easily grasped lead into the subject of divine providence:

"Radar is a great big electric eye that can 'see' planes and bombs and rockets that might be sent to kill us. These big machines that our country has all over are always 'watching over' us so we won't get hurt. They are 'watching' day and night so that the enemy cannot get at us.

"Radar does help us, but it is just a machine. Radar can't love us, and radar doesn't really care if we get hurt. It can do wonderful things, but it can't do everything. But there is something that can do everything for us, something that can do more than just help us, something that can really take care of us and really keep away from us anything that might hurt us. We call that something 'divine providence.'"

The book is handsomely bound, printed in large type, and makes a fine addition to any shelf of books parents share with their children. — John Dash.

Sister Marie Jeanne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Leccese of Edgemere Drive, took final vows Jan. 29 in the Missionary Sisters of the Precious Blood, Shillington, Pa. She was graduated recently from Kutztown Pa., State College, where she is a graduate assistant studying for the master of science degree. She attended Sacred Heart School and Nazareth Academy.

Community Night Speakers Listed

Auburn — Trinity Methodist Church invites the public to a Community Night at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 16.

Representatives of various organizations who will participate in a panel discussion include Sister Joan Alice of Mercy Hospital, Fred Richardson of the Auburn Black Community Development, Mrs. James Shaffstall, Salvation Army, and Rev. Burton Nussey, chaplain, Auburn Correctional Facility.

CYO A BIGGIE

The CYO basketball league is the largest youth league in Monroe County, with 84 teams and over 1500 participants. Games are played at 16 gyms throughout the county.

Beauty Salon Week A Charity Project

St. Martin de Porres Center on North Clinton will benefit from the local celebration of the 22nd annual "National Beauty Salon Week."

A buffet dinner, masquerade ball and hair style show is planned as a fund raiser by the Rochester Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

The public affair will be at 7:30 Monday night, Feb. 14, at the Mapledale Party House, 1020 Maple St. Music will be provided free by the American Federation of Musicians. Admission is $5.50 per person, at the door.

Have fun! Take a youngster to the

SHILLINGTON CIRCUS

WAR MEMORIAL 4 BIG DAYS FEB. 16-19

TWICE DAILY - 2 & 8 P.M. 3 SHOWS SAT. 10 A.M., 2 & 8 P.M. NOTE: Wednesday (time) Sold Out

IN PERSON

DOUG McCLURE STAR OF TV'S 'MEN OF SHILOH'

With his own big Western and Hollywood TV and film personalities

GET RESERVED SEAT TICKETS NOW

WAR MEMORIAL - WAR MEMORIAL

$1.50 2.00 2.50 3.00 3.50

TAKE PICTURE of the children with their favorite Shillington Circus Characters

Phone Orders 232-1144

WORLD'S GREATEST Circus Acts

Headlining BAZZAN BROWN

World's Toughest USA Animal Trainer Performing in a couple of hours on jungle beasts.

GLOWING GLOWYS

TONS & TONS OF PERFORMING ELEPHANTS

LA MURINA Fabulous Acrobats

And Many Many Others