

Science Fair Displays Seen At St. Ann's

Hornell — There were about 80 displays in St. Ann's School assembly hall for the annual Science Fair held March 12.

A concern for the environment seemed to be reflected in the exhibits. Sister Mary Jude's sixth, seventh and eighth graders presented a very knowledgeable display.

Elizabeth Racalto, a seventh grader, won first grand award for her work on the excretory system. The second grand award went to Diane Lackey of the eighth grade for her exhibit "Web of Life".

Tornados, their causes and their effects, were illustrated by Rosemarie Colomaio to win third place honors for the sixth grade.

Judges were William Smith of the Hornell High School faculty, Mrs. William Boyle, Middle School; Robert Dugan, St. Mary's School, Corning; Daniel Krygier, St. Vincent's, Corning; Joseph Aini, St. James Mercy Hospital staff; Mrs. James Dagon, home counselor for the Hornell Schools and Sister Mary Carmelia and Sister Mary Nathaniel of Notre Dame High School in Elmira.

Wild life, weather, evolution, the heart, eyes, ears and lungs, forest conservation and the 1935 flood in Hornell were typical exhibits. Youngsters were on hand to answer questions put to them by the judges.

Second and third place winners were:

Eighth grade — Joseph DiDio and Michael Rahmlow, second place for their project on sound; Corinne Munn for her papier mache model of a local biome — the Canisteo River valley. A biome is a unit of the environment including earth forms, plant and animal life and factors affecting it.

Seventh grade — James DiDio, second place for a homemade incubator and brooder; Lisa Lackey, third place for her work on volcanoes.

Each contestant was presented with a Science Fair Award from Sister Mary Ambrose, principal of St. Ann's School.

Scholarship Awards Given

Hornell — Four area student nurses in the St. James Mercy Hospital School of Nursing were recipients of scholarship awards presented Friday morning during a special assembly.

Miss Loretta Haefele, director of the school, introduced the guests who sponsored the scholarships and announced the awardees.

The Hazel Stewart Scholarship Awards of $150 were freshman Miss Sue Campbell of Cleveland Avenue, a junior student.

Recipients of the Riedman Agency Scholarship Fund Awards of $150 were freshman student Miss Mary Christine Rohan, 386 S. Division Street, and Lloyd Quant, 100 Catherine Street.

Mrs. Jacqueline Wagner of Conesus, a junior, was named winner of the Arthur R. Foreman Sr. Memorial Merit Scholarship Award of $100.

REACH Begins Housing Project

Wayland — Recruitment has begun in the Wayland area for a self-help housing project being promoted by Project REACH in Perkinsville under the direction of Francis Chin, housing director.

Chin explained that self-help housing has progressed steadily in Steuben County with one group, the Willing Workers Association, nearing completion of homes. Another group, the Bath Area Self-Helpers, plans to start construction this spring.

Recruitment for a third group here is being based on requests for housing aid being received at REACH headquarters, Perkinsville.

Chin said the program allows families to work together and supply the labor for building their own homes. They are directed by an experienced construction supervisor who organized training and construction sessions.

Each family obtains its own long-term, low interest loan from the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) to pay the cost of land and materials. No down payment is necessary.

While waiting for loan applications to be approved, the Bath group has met with speakers who have discussed all phases of home ownership including house plans, interior decoration, heating methods, insurance, taxes, building materials and the process of working together.

Chin and group workers Jan Hesbon, Peter Carruth, Dan Soles and Susie DeGrace of the housing staff recently attended a self-help housing conference in Toledo, Ohio, arranged by the Rural Housing Alliance (RHA).

In addition to learning new approaches to common problems, they were taught techniques for working with groups of families, with the FHA office and were assisted in solving complications of construction. An RHA consultant, Frank Martinez, also visited the REACH staff to give on-site advice. Soles, a member of the Bath project, will be organizer and group worker in Wayland.

Information about the program is available at Project REACH, Chin said.

Security and Adventure Women's Council Topic

Ithaca — On March 9 and 10 the Women's Council of St. Catherine of Siena Parish held its semi-annual Days of Inspiration. Featured speaker was Father Tom Faase, S.J., who is living at St. Catherine's while working on his doctorate in sociology at Cornell.

A native of Milwaukee, Father Faase has studied at Marquette and St. Louis Universities where he has earned a master's degree in family sociology. In addition to academic pursuits, Father worked for three years as assistant principal and teacher at St. Francis Indian Mission on the Rosebud Sioux Indian Reservation in South Dakota.

"The Security and Adventure of Today's Catholicism" was the subject of his address. Noting that today's society seems to be "running wild," Father sug-
