speaking to church groups or community groups, to encourage them to set up programs in the area they deem most important. The need for youth to know their rights, family court, volunteer probation officers, or helping parolees find jobs are areas Mrs. Mackey mentioned for possible concentration.

The current ecumenical effort is the result of a 1969 "Report of the Committee on Persons Involved in the Judicial Process" which was prepared by seminarians from St. Bernard's and the Colgate-Rochester complex, the Catholic Diocese and the then Rochester Area Council of Churches.

The Rochester Area (Black) ministers Conference reported in March, 1970, a deterioration in police and community relations in some sections of the city.
