Rosary Society Members Busy in Clifton Springs

By PATRICIA BOLAND

Clifton Springs — The Rosary Society of St. Felix Church here has been keeping busy. Its annual Mother-Daughter Communion Breakfast is scheduled for Sunday, May 7, after the 8:30 a.m. Mass.

Instead of a speaker, this year the society plans a marionette performance for the children.

On Sunday, April 23, society members visited patients at the Ontario County Home. Most hospital volunteers are home with their families on Sunday, so there is a special need for visitors that day.

One Sunday a month, society members visit patients, bringing them ice cream, magazines and other small gifts.

Tickets for the Communion breakfast may be purchased from society members or after any Mass. Price is $2 for adults and $1.25 for children.

Become Priests, Pope Urges Youth

Vatican City — (RNS) — Pope Paul VI sees a way out for many idealistic youths of today. The pontiff recommended that they embrace the priesthood and work towards their ideal in life in a world they have come to look upon as corrupt.

In a message intended for the World Day of Prayer for Religious Vocations the Pope laid particular stress on the need to communicate the calling of the priesthood to youth.

Noting the "enormous importance" of priestly vocations for the Church, he urged all members of the church community to pray fervently that God's voice "may be generously heard by a more and more ardent host of young people."

He said that many of today's youth are "lost in the search for an ideal of which they do not know the name and are acting in sharp reaction to a world which they see as corrupt and full of lies."

"It is up to us," he emphasized, "to make the calling of the Church heard" even above the hustle and bustle of modern daily life and its collection of conflicting values.

Describing the religious vocation as "a serious commitment" that calls for "openness" and involves "risk," Pope Paul urged families to become "the first seminaries" by realizing their character as "indispensable resources" of new vocations.

DRUG PROGRAM

Right or Wrong?

A true self-cleaning oven cleans itself as it cooks

If your answer is "wrong," you're right. Every range with a self-cleaning oven on the market today, electric or gas, uses one of two cleaning methods, PYROLYTIC or CONTINUOUS CLEANING. Pyrolytic is believed to be the only true self-cleaning method because it has a special cycle, initiated by the owner, that uses high heat in the oven to decompose oven soil to a small amount of ash. This process takes about 2 to 4 hours, including cool-down, depending on amount of soil. During this process the oven walls, floor, interior window, interior light cover, inside door panel are cleaned.

The Continuous Cleaning method takes place as food is being cooked. A special finish is applied to the oven lining which promotes oxidation of oven soil.

Although this process does decompose most foods readily (like fat) it may take longer to decompose certain substances, like milk or sugar.

You probably have some questions of your own regarding ranges with self-cleaning ovens. Like the comparative cost of operation between Pyrolytic and Continuous Cleaning, the cost of commercial oven cleaners compared to the automatic self-cleaning operation.

All your questions about automatic self-cleaning ovens can be answered at the RG&E April Consumer Information Center on the main floor, 89 East Avenue.

The Center will be staffed by our Home Economists Monday through Friday from 11:00 am to 3:00 pm and Tuesday evenings from 7:00 pm to 8:30 pm.
