

The "Tar Cathedral" in Leningrad, where the tar workers of the capital used to attend services, is right next to the Smolny Institute, headquarters for the Bolsheviks during the early Revolution.

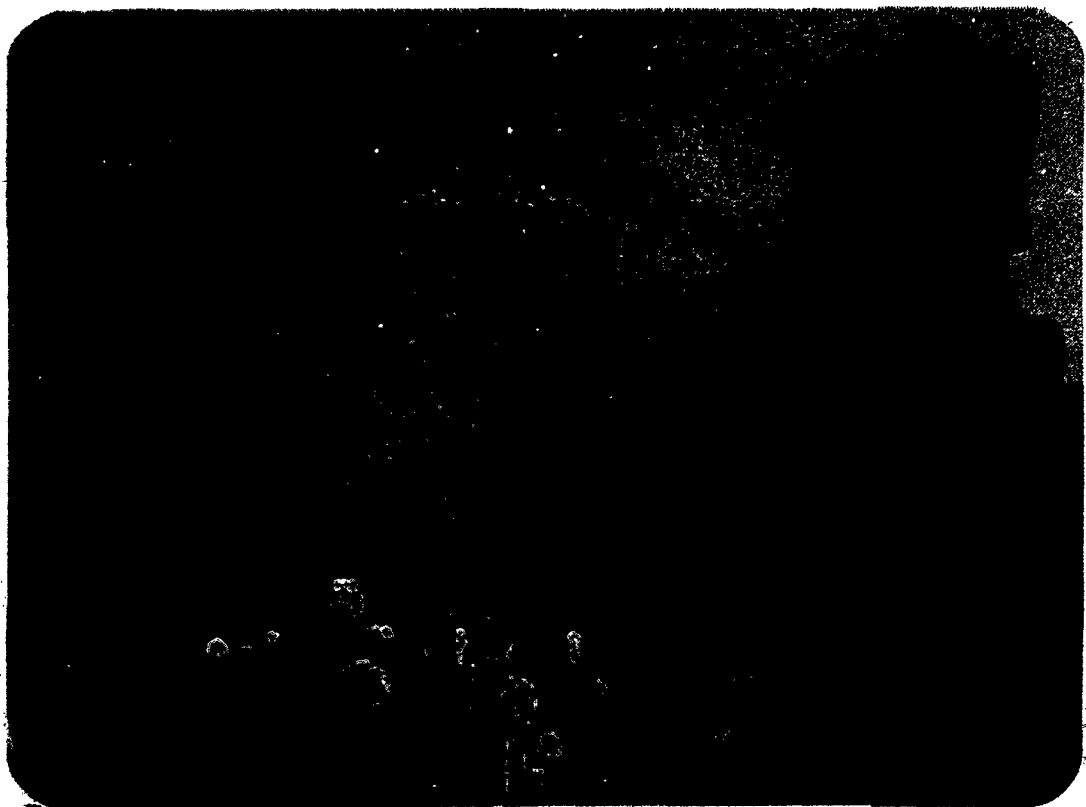

St. Nicholas, an Orthodox church in Moscow, has its exterior maintained at state expense. Scaffolding is visible at lower right.

Tourists look out on Bay of Finland from front yard of Peter's summer palace.

Dr. Jerome Davis, Quaker leader of tour, in yard of Smolny Institute.

The Russian War Memorial in East Berlin dominated by monuments.

A futuristic street lamp creates dramatic pattern with clouds.