

Day Care Center Open Second Season

By PATRICIA BOLAND

East Bloomfield — When the people of St. Bridget's and West Bloomfield's St. Joseph parish put up a building here, they had religious education in mind. CCD classes do meet nights and Saturdays, but weekdays are another matter. Then the building is full of little children — Indians from Canada and Puerto Ricans.

This is the second season for the Day Care Center for the Children of Migrant Workers. It is a short term, September to mid-December, the peak of the pelting season.

During this season, many Indians come down from Canada to work on the large fur farms in this area. In recent years a number of Puerto Ricans also have come.

With the arrival of these new workers, the Migrant Advisory Council was formed. Members are from the Bristol-Bloomfield-Richmond area and include a fire chief, a town clerk, ministers, and a number of farmers. From this council the idea for a day care center sprang.

Both Father Elmer McNamara, pastor of St. Bridget's of Bloomfield, and Lyle Jenks, director of the center, stress that the center is the result of community involvement and effort.

Cardinal Alfrink Meets with Pope

Vatican City (RNS) — Cardinal Bernard Alfrink of Holland met privately with Pope Paul in an apparent effort to find some way of resolving differences between "progressive" bishops in the Netherlands and the Holy See. The Vatican declined to say what the two churchmen discussed.

The primate of Holland came here in the wake of a public disagreement between the Vatican and two Dutch bishops over the publication and use of a new catechism.

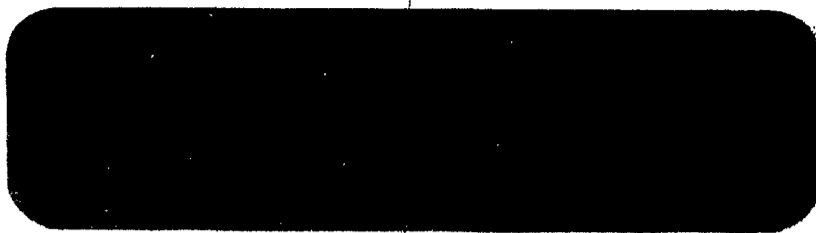

The Vatican recently ordered the book recalled on the grounds that some of its teachings, contested Church history on such matters as the divinity of Jesus Christ and His resurrection from the dead.

The first step in the operation was locating a building that would meet state requirements on fire prevention, facilities, and space.

The parish building was the answer. From 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. the scene is of children sleeping, washing hands before meals, painting, riding tricycles. There are about 44 children enrolled, under the care of a director, assistant director, cook, teacher, and four group leaders.

Volunteers also play an important part. Women take sheets and diapers home to launder. Teenagers help out after school. Funds for the school come from federal and state sources, along with donations and help from the participating communities.

Jenks says that the primary function of the center is custodial care, but his goals for these children, their parents, and the community are much farther reaching. He plans one fieldtrip a week to enrich the children's learning experiences — a ride on a train, a trip to a supermarket, for example. He encourages both children and parents to express themselves in painting and handicrafts. He plans art displays using these objects. The children at the center will also have an Indian and a Puerto Rican dinner, cooked by parents.

The object of all this: an understanding and cultural appreciation among the migrants themselves and the communities in which they live.

An experienced and distinguished jurist.

Judge A. L. Cassetti was elected to the City Court in 1961 and re-elected by a large plurality in 1967. He has been a judge longer than any of the City Court Judges, any of the Family Court Judges, three of the four County Court Judges and some of the Supreme Court Judges. He has been the administrative Judge of City Court and is now the Senior Judge of the City Court of Rochester.

It stands to reason.

For eleven years, Judge Cassetti has dealt with some of our community's most difficult and heartbreaking problems. He has presided over thousands of cases with both commitment and compassion, earning a widespread reputation as an outstanding jurist. It stands to reason that Judge Cassetti, by virtue of his experience and judgment, is best qualified to serve the people as County Court Judge.

Justice above politics.

Qualified men and women of all parties have something to contribute to all branches of government. Since Monroe County was established, however, only one Democrat has ever been elected to the County Court bench; that was forty years ago at the height of a catastrophic depression. We believe that today's voters want the best qualified individuals in public office, regardless of party affiliation. Judge Cassetti's uphill effort to achieve direct election by people of all parties is a commitment to that belief.

A unique understanding of the times in which we live.

Judge Cassetti has a "grass roots" feeling for the times in which we live. His experience in City Court has given him unique insight into the problems facing our community. For over a decade his work has been to make this community a safer place to live for all the people. Judge Cassetti deals with unrest on a day-to-day basis. He sees the suffering on both sides—the pain and fear of the victims of criminals as well as the anguish of parents and families of those misguided individuals who stray beyond the law. This type of suffering knows no boundaries, it certainly does not stop at the City line. Judge Cassetti has that delicate balance of experience, commitment and compassion to see all sides and to apply the law judiciously.

The people will decide.

Independent thinkers of all parties—your vote is needed for Judge A. L. Cassetti. Not only because he is one of our most experienced and distinguished jurists, but because if we are going to replace the fear and hostility of today with confidence and understanding tomorrow, we need the best men and women that we can find. We ask voters of all parties, Republican, Democrat, Conservative, Liberal, Independent and others to set party aside momentarily on November 7, to vote for Judge Cassetti because we believe he is uniquely qualified and that his election will help make our community and all communities, city and suburban, safer places to live . . . better places to raise our families.
