

SARAH CHILD
All In The Family

It was either Phyllis McGinley in "Sixpence in Her Shoe" or Peg Bracken writing in one of the women's magazines who extolled the virtues of the blender.

If she had to pick one kitchen aid that was more valuable than any other, one of them wrote, it would be the splendid, multi-talented blender.

It just goes to show you what odd values some people have.

My most irreplaceable kitchen aid is a pencil sharpener. (Anybody can get along without a stove. I operated our kitchen for a week with a hot pot and an electric fry pan the time we lost ours.)

But, run a house without a sharpener — unthinkable. Ours, mounted next to the telephone at the last house, was taken down, packed and lost almost forever during the most recent move.

Try writing an excuse to the teacher in purple crayon sometime. Fill out your church envelope Sunday morning with a green magic marker.

Send your change of address to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles in artist's charcoal and above all write a sweet nothing on your spouse's birthday card with the laundry pen you use to mark the kids' boots and mittens.

I know, I know. Most families have replaced the common pencil with the ubiquitous ball point pen. Well we did too. We own 236 of them. I know where two of them are. One is with the crossword puzzle next to our bed and the other is with the checkbook which might be behind the cocoa or next to the shaving cream, depending on who was using it last.

A freshly sharpened new copy pencil within reach is enough to cause chills up and down my back and the prospect of owning a whole marmalade jar full of them would send me into a frenzy.

I have always been crazy about new pencils freshly pointed. The very sight of one can start me list-making even though nothing needs listing. A lovely soft black one with a fine edge sends me scurrying for a crossword, even somebody's half worked one. And somehow I can always see the proper muse hovering over just honed pencils, a vision I can't quite conjure up when confronting a typewriter.

But most of all I love pencils because my kids won't touch them.

They, the products of a television age, children of a space world and chief exponents of a pushbutton technology, find lurid, indelible ink superior to plain old black lead anytime.

And, if that's not reason enough to get my sharpener mounted I don't know what is.

BRUCE CONNOLLY

Marine Midland Bank — Rochester has announced the elections of Bruce R. Connolly as a vice president and Jack Broomfield as an assistant vice president.

Connolly, who is manager of Marine Midland's East Avenue Office, joined the bank in 1962. He obtained extensive experience in the bank's installment loan area prior to accepting his present post in 1970. In addition to having attended St. John Fisher College, Connolly has also taken various specialized banking and credit courses.

He is a member of St. Mary's of the Lake Catholic Church in Ontario. Connolly, his wife and four children live in Ontario.

Broomfield has been manager of Marine Midland's Pittsford-Brighton Office (in Pittsford Plaza) since mid-1971. An accounting major while at St. John Fisher College, Broomfield joined the bank in 1968 and has served exclusively in its branch system.

He is a member of St. Louis Catholic Church in Pittsford.

Broomfield and his wife live in Pittsford. They have four children.
