Sister Anne Cullen's second grade class at Holy Family School in Auburn made a trip to Corning recently to give Mrs. Josephine Scianni a little Tender Loving Care. The trip was the culmination of several months planning sparked by the children's desire to help someone who suffered from the June flood.

Gifts were gathered during the offertory procession in a Mass of Thanksgiving. Sister Anne Cullen and James LaDouce, teachers at Holy Family, Carol Techman, parish-coordinator, and Father John Glogowski accompanied the children to Corning. There they gave Mrs. Scianni a shower, complete with milk and cookies, in her home.

Several of the children in the class had some insight into the feelings accompanying a disaster. They had been evacuated from their homes in the city when the dam threatened to break in Auburn's own flood scare in June.

Mrs. Scianni, a widow, was more fortunate than

Boxed TLC on its way to be loaded for the trip to Corning.
