

DeSales Fund Drive Gathering Momentum

Geneva — Donald J. Eades, general chairman of De Sales' Development Program, has announced receipt of the first $26,000 of pledges in the community-wide fund-raising campaign for De Sales High School. Eades said that this represents a partial report from the Pace Setters Committee which is functioning under the co-chairmanship of William B. McDonald and Frederick M. Toole.

The $250,000 campaign was officially opened with a "kick off" meeting of the Pace Setters and business and industrial committees on March 1. A Special Gifts Committee under the leadership of Bernard G. Lynch, will begin work on Monday, March 12, at a meeting in the Knights of Columbus Hall here. General solicitation will be conducted in the Geneva area on Sunday, April 1, with a committee of nearly 500 committeemen and women from the parishes of St. Francis De Sales and St. Stephen's and other friends of De Sales High School.

Bishop Joseph L. Hogan will address the 500 committeemen and women for the De Sales Development Program at a rally at 7:30 p.m., Monday, March 26 in the De Sales gymnasium. This will be in the nature of a home coming visit for Bishop Hogan who, as then Father Hogan, was principal of De Sales High from September 1953 through June 1955.

Daniel P. Quigley, president of the Board of Trustees of De Sales said that enthusiasm for the campaign is mounting steadily as enlistment of division leaders, team captains and committee people reaches fulfillment of manpower requirements.

Father Richard J. Tormey, pastor of St. Stephen's and member of De Sales Board of Trustees, speaking to the Pace Setters and business and industrial committees cited the heritage of De Sales High School. "De Sales High School is a high-value community asset," he said, "producing human assets in the form of doctors, lawyers, nurses, teachers, accountants, bankers, responsible parents and citizens in all walks of life." "De Sales has been serving the Geneva area for more than 60 years, providing an excellent education under the guidance of dedicated, committed, spiritually oriented persons, Father Tormey said, "and the community can not and should not lose such an institution."

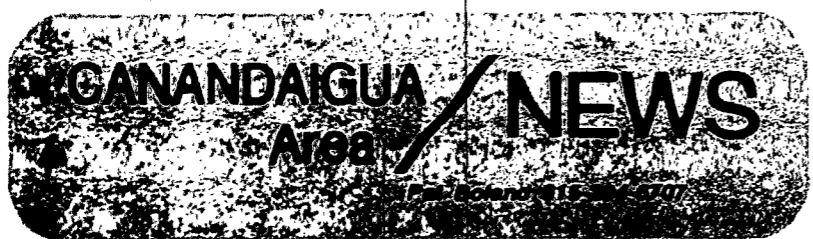

The fund raising campaign is the beginning of a two-phase master plan for providing both immediate and long range funding for the school. The $250,000 proceeds from the campaign will be used to offset an increasing operating deficit and to inaugurate both academic and physical plant improvements.

Recognizing that beyond the initial campaign, De Sales will be faced with need for continual funding to assure that tuition charges will remain as low as possible, steps will be taken over the next two years to inaugurate a development office. Objectives will be determined by a projects and priorities committee.

'Operation Refurnish' Needs Items

Corning — The latest phase of flood recovery in the Southern Tier is called "Operation Refurnish," following a long list of similarly titled programs from the Office of Human Development in Corning, Operation Clean-Up, Operation Rebuild, Operation Follow-Thru, and Project Tender Loving Care, among them.

Now that families who evacuated during the June flood are slowly moving back into their homes, many must replace ruined furniture, sometimes almost entirely.

The Red Cross has a warehouse on the corner of State Street and Denison Parkway in which furniture and appliances are stored to be taken by anyone who needs them.

Anyone wishing to give furniture in good condition to Operation Refurnish may do so. However, the Office of Human Development does not have a truck to bring items in. Transportation arrangements to the warehouse must be made by those who are donating goods.

Among needed items are chests of drawers, couches, chairs, end tables, card tables, kitchen tables, lamps, wringer or automatic washing machines, gas stoves, refrigerators, beds and mattresses, desks, rugs, sewing machines, pots and pans.

If there are any questions, OHD in Corning may be reached at 607-936-3213.

Insulate windows to reduce heat loss.

Proper insulation for your home includes impeding heat flow through windows as well as through walls. As much as 33% of the heat loss or gain in a home may occur through the glass in its windows.

Water damage to window frames and surrounding walls may also occur if windows are uninsulated because moisture will condense on the inside of the windows on a very cold day.

Glass is usually insulated with a storm window, that is, a second window fitted over the outside of the glass, preventing much of the cold air from reaching the interior window. Newer homes are often equipped with insulated glass. In such a home the windows are actually made of two parallel panes of glass fitted into a single frame. The effectiveness of insulated glass, also known as thermal glass, is a function of the distance between the two parallel panes.

A temporary, but effective and inexpensive way to insulate windows is to tack heavy-gauge clear plastic over the inside of the window. Such plastic is available in sheets or rolls from hardware and department stores, as well as building supply firms. You can install it yourself by cutting out a piece of plastic large enough to cover a window and tack it securely to the window frame, stretching it tight.

You can also help reduce heat flow through the glass in your home with draperies. In the winter close them when it's dark outside, but open them to let the sunshine help warm your home. In the summer reverse the procedure, closing the drapes against direct sunlight to help keep your home cool.

These is a lot more to know about insulating your home besides storm windows. We'll share what we know with you this month at the Consumer Information Center. It's located on the main floor of RG&E's 89 East Avenue Offices. One of our Residential Representatives will be there to answer your questions Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Tuesday evening from 7 to 8:30.
