Members of the Cenacle Retreat League, who are lay persons, work to promote the services offered by the Cenacle religious.

The Cenacle's facilities are not only open to afternoon discussion groups and seminar sessions but can be used for longer stays and overnight visits.

In the past, according to Sister Marie Halligan, head of the House, retreat groups preferred to hear speakers; today, most groups prefer to engage purely in discussion groups or immerse themselves in complete solitude and prayer.

A Triduum, climaxed by Bishop Joseph L. Hogan's Jubilee Mass on Saturday, will feature talks by Fathers Albert Bartlett, SJ; Albert Shamon and Henry Atwell.
