

OUR PARISH COUNCIL Bernard Lyons

The council president and the pastor were standing near the door, smiling broadly. Parishioners came in two's and three's to the meeting.

There were the 15 council board members and nearly 60 additional parishioners. It was a "good showing" from a parish of 450 families.

Why such a good turnout at this Midwest parish for a council meeting, when many councils are lucky to get out a quorum?

"Our meetings have always been open," says the council president. "We always got the board members and a few visitors. The real change came a year ago when we started our annual workshop day for committees."

"The people come because they are involved," reports the pastor. "Our meetings have changed. Before the visitors had to merely sit and listen to the reports and discussions of the board members. Now many of the visitors are here to give reports on their committees or sub-committees, and they can enter into a discussion within the time limits set on the agenda."

The council president, acting as chairman of the meeting, moved the agenda along briskly. Minutes had been sent to the board members before the meeting, and the reading was dispensed with. A few questions and clarifications about the minutes were taken care of and the minutes were approved.

Commission chairmen made brief summaries of their reports after distributing a written report full of specific details. In some cases, the report had the wording for a motion so that the council might take a vote on policy or decide a direction for action.

In certain cases, too, a commission chair person asked one of the "visitors," who headed a sub-committee, to give a specific report on some details. For example, the woman who headed the worship commission asked the woman in charge of the home Mass sub-committee for a detailed account of the number of home Masses scheduled for the month.

The meeting ended promptly, just as it began on time. Many of the parishioners stayed to talk over coffee.

The two workshops for council committee members have certainly stimulated the involvement of the parishioners.

Each council commission prepares its own workshop for the annual workshop day. In some cases, because of the many different sub-committees several workshops are planned by the commission. The worship commission, for example, held workshop groups this past year for ushers, lectors, altar boys, and the Home Mass program.

In each case, volunteers were contacted before the annual workshop and given a package of material to read and consider before the meeting. The volunteers got acquainted with the commission chair person and the chairman of the committee for which they had volunteered. They had agreed to serve on the committee for at least one year, until the next workshop day.

The council president, acting as chairman of the meeting, moved the agenda along briskly. Minutes had been sent to the board members before the meeting, and the reading was dispensed with. A few questions and clarifications about the minutes were taken care of and the minutes were approved.

400 Parents Attend Trinity School Meeting

Auburn — More than 400 parents attended the first meeting of the home school association for the newly-developed Blessed Trinity School held recently.

Sister Walter Anne, SSJ, principal, was the featured speaker for the event. She outlined the role of the school in the education of children.

Following the formal program, parents toured the classrooms and were served refreshments in the cafeteria.

Sister Walter Anne spoke of the success of the merger which formed the school. She said it was made possible by cooperative partnership on the part of all.

Sister spoke of the aims of the new school: that it be a quality school, where good teaching and scholastic achievement predominate, a school where discipline is assisting, guiding, training, and teaching the student to become loyal, devoted, responsible, and accountable.

citizen serving in today's world as well as in tomorrow's.

There is a need for unified consistent effort on the part of parents and teachers to provide students with opportunities to grow in their understanding of their world and their development of Christian values, she said.

Break-In Discovered

Wayland — State Police are investigating a break-in at St. Joseph's Church which apparently occurred over the weekend of Nov. 3-4.

According to Father James F. Baker, pastor, both the front door to the church and a door to the basement were found damaged as if by a pry bar.

The break-in was discovered about 8 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 4, when Father Baker found the tabernacle of the church broken open and the ciborium, a cup containing the Body of Christ, uncovered.

Father Baker said last week that it was undetermined whether anything had been stolen from the church.

Minister Gives Birth

Hightstown, N.J. [RNS] — For the first time in history, a minister of the Lutheran Church in America has become a "mother."

The Rev. Margaret Krych is the first ordained woman to have a child since the denomination opened the clergy to women in 1970.

Mrs. Krych, whose husband is the Rev. Arden L. Krych, pastor of St. Paul's church here, is on the staff of the Church's Division of Parish Services in New York City.

RELIGIOUS ED.

Prattsburg — Religious instructions for St. Patrick's youth grades 9-12 are held in the church hall after the 7:30 p.m. Mass on Thursdays. Grades 7 and 8 classes are on Mondays.
