over a bargain store, in an area of drug pushers, addicts, and was afraid to go out to get anything to eat. He has been mugged twice. Finally, he managed to locate an apartment in one of the new senior citizens housing projects. To him this is a bit of heaven, where he is free to walk outside, breathe fresh air, look at the trees and grass and even the lake. He has one big question, however — how does he furnish his apartment? Besides his clothes, he has just two possessions — an old fashioned radio and a small portable television. Giuseppe is in need of everything to furnish his apartment. With money we could purchase adequate second hand furniture for him. Catholic Family Center.

14 Mrs. M. is an elderly widow who lives alone in a small studio apartment. She is unable to get out, and her only company is a television set. Loneliness and old age are only part of Mrs. M's problems — money for food is another. Her social security checks each month cover rent and monthly bills, with not much left over. As Mrs. M. puts it, the holidays look pretty blue to her; but a little help would brighten them up. Catholic Family Center.

15 Mr. D. is a middle-aged man with a wife and three children, two of whom are handicapped. For years this man has held a steady job in maintenance but he has recently become unemployed due to health reasons. The D. family's home is a small, old shack, poorly furnished and located in a rundown neighborhood. In addition to finding a job within his physical capacity, and moving his family to a decent home, Mr. D's most urgent need is for dental work for himself, which has been put off because of the expense. Catholic Family Center.

16 Mr. and Mrs. C. live in a poorly kept small apartment off a very busy street. They have a son who has many needs, material and emotional. They want so to meet his needs, but because of their own illnesses and lack of employment, found they could best care for their son by placing him in foster care. They need money for winter clothes for themselves. Catholic Family Center.

17 Mrs. M., a widow of ten years, has three teenage children whom she cannot care for because of physical and mental problems. She's lonely for her family. Could you help to make her Christmas a pleasant one? Catholic Family Center.

18 Mr. K's wife left him five years ago. Their son is now six years old and need a mommy. His daddy is very unhappy and wants to be a better father but he's in the hospital so much. Christmas could be much happier for them with your help. Catholic Family Center.

19 Little K's mommy is deceased. She's been in home after home and needs to be loved. How can Santa say "We love you and we care about you"? Catholic Family Center.

20 Mrs. B's husband walked away from their home last year. She's working two jobs and caring for their three children all alone. Can someone brighten her Christmas Season with a little gift just for her? Catholic Family Center.

21 Mr. and Mrs. H.D.J. came from Puerto Rico three months ago. Mr. J. immediately found a job but, unfortunately, due to a strike has not been working within the past month. He is not eligible for unemployment insurance and life is lean for them. Their three daughters, ages 6 1/2, 3 and 1 1/2, are loved and well cared for. However, they are living in a small, three-room apartment and occasionally their meager income and crowded quarters cause tempers to fly and children to become irritable. This family is in need of much supportive services as well as extras at Christmas to brighten their lives. Catholic Family Center.

22 Mrs. E.C. has been living with her father-in-law since her husband deserted her. There are five children, ages 9, 8, 7, 3, and 2. Mrs. C. is a shy woman who tries to make the best of her drab life. Family needs clothing, more adequate living arrangements, a Christmas dinner and toys for the children to help make their life a little better. Catholic Family Center.

23 During the past year Mrs. S's life has been filled with tragedy. Her husband died and a fire destroyed all of the family's belongings. From Social Security
