

Spanish Prelate Visits with Pope

Rome [RNS] — A private audience granted by Pope Paul to the Apostolic Nuncio to Spain, Archbishop Luigi Daaglio, was tied by the media here to widespread unrest among the Spanish Catholic clergy over priests imprisoned in Zamora, Spain.

At the same time, the Vatican released a statement describing sit ins by Spanish priests and laymen at papal nunciatures in Madrid, Bonn and Berne, Switzerland, as both "worthy" and "inadmissible" — good intentions but poor performance.

Although the statement deplored the sit ins, it said the criticism did not apply to the intentions of those priests and laity staging them. The demonstrators were seeking to spur the Vatican to mediate the situation in Spain where six priests carried on a hunger strike because they were placed in separate prison facilities as required by the Spain-Vatican concordat.

The statement condemned the occupation of the papal nunciatures by supporters of the Zamora priests as "improper pressure judged reprehensible by public opinion."

Meanwhile, Spanish news agencies in Madrid distributed an official government statement declaring that the six priests imprisoned had ended their 16 day hunger strike voluntarily and were in satisfactory condition.

In early November, the six began a strike to dramatize their demand to be lodged with political prisoners in other Spanish jails, denouncing the Spain-Vatican concordat.

The first hunger strike, following an incident in which the priests set fire to their cells, triggered a wave of protests in Bilbao and San Sebastian (in the Basque area) and in Madrid. The government responded by transferring the priests to a prison hospital outside Madrid.

Eight days later, they returned to Zamora and began their second strike.

One of the problems with our popular Scot's Pub was that it was well, too popular.

So we decided to give our customers a little more elbow room. 300 square feet of it.

Drop in for a generous drink or two of the best on your next evening out. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

We won't go on about the Royal Scot Steak House, of which the Pub is the good right arm. Most of you already know what gastronomic delights await you there.
