Winter Scene

The snow-capped lanterns of Corpus Christi Church stand out against the crenelated towers of the East Main Street armory, lending a medieval atmosphere to the Prince Street corner.

ON THE LINE

The editors of Random House have rejected the outline of a novel which former Vice President Agnew is writing. It's about a future Vice President whose downfall is programmed by Chinese Communists, roughly. Too roughly, said the editors.

But surely there are enough publishers around today to encourage Agnew, not in the interests of his redemption but with an eye on their "bottom line." Lots of people would buy a novel by the man who was programmed not for damnation but for the Presidency of the United States, no matter how much the book critics might pound it. In that respect, the books of Jacqueline Susann are generally clobbered by the critics, but they outsell everything published except the Bible and Thoughts of Mao.

Every living soul believes he has a novel in him, and Spiro's no exception. It is good to try to exercise it, and return to sanity.

Getting Refund? File Now

Want a faster tax refund this year? File early to avoid the rush. The Internal Revenue service pointed out last week that the key to prompt settlement is in early filing of claims.

Joseph M. Hoffman of the IRS in Rochester said that early filers gain about a two-week advantage. The 10 IRS centers can process returns and approve refunds much faster because the

JUDGE KNIGHTED

Bath — In recent ceremonies in St. Patrick's Cathedral, the highest honor of the church conferred upon a layman, the Knighthood of Malta, was bestowed on one of St. Mary's parishioners, Judge Domenick Gabrielli by Cardinal Terence Cooke.

SUMMER FESTIVAL

Hornell — St. Ignatius parishioners will sponsor a festival June 7-8. Anyone interested in making or donating items for the event of those men and women willing to work, are asked to contact Mrs. Joseph Cleveland (324-0187) or Mrs. Asa Ashworth (324-0986).
