

Bride's Checklist

This checklist will vary with individual taste, but basically it provides an overall view of the steps a prospective bride should consider in preparing for her wedding day.

Set the date and time; make arrangements with your parish priest.

Invite your bridesmaids to participate in the wedding. (Make sure your fiance invites the ushers.)

Make the reservations for your wedding reception with your church, hotel or club.

Choose and order your gown and attendants' dresses.

Decide how much you can and want to spend on your wedding. Parents are usually the ones to consult on this matter.

Start preparing your guest list, and ask your future mother-in-law to begin hers.

Start planning your honeymoon.

Begin shopping for your new home or apartment and furnishings.

Begin shopping for your china and silver patterns. It's a good idea to register your choice in advance with a department store that has such a service.

Order your invitations, announcements and thank-you notes.

It is customary to buy your attendants gifts. Choose them now.

Order your flowers.

Shop for your trousseau.

Make arrangements for a photographer.

Address, stamp and seal your invitations and announcements so they'll be ready to mail at the proper time.

Check in with your physician for medical examination, blood test, etc.

Mail your invitations.

This is the time for final fittings for you and all in your bridal party.

Finish shopping for your trousseau, if need be.

Don't forget that gift for your future husband.

Make whatever final decisions remain on your wedding reception menu and order.

Begin recording wedding gifts and writing thank-you notes.

Order your wedding cake and favors.

Treat your bridesmaids to a luncheon. Now, or at the reception, would be a good time to give them their gifts.

Make a list of things you'll need for the honeymoon.

Begin moving your linens and household items to your new home or apartment.

Stock those shelves with grocery staples and get supplies for your medicine chest.

Don't forget the marriage license, and all the proper signatures.

Check with the priest about church rehearsal time.

It's customary on rehearsal night to hold a dinner for the bridal party.

Give the photographer time to take your wedding portraits before you start down the aisle.

Turn your luggage over to the best man.

Take a deep breath, pray that you make it through the ceremony, and remember that never, never, never does everything go exactly as planned.
