'Humanistic Christian Socialism' Seen Needed in Latin America

Panama City [RNS] — A Roman Catholic prelate said here that the search is on in Latin America for a "humanistic Christian socialism" leading to the equal distribution of goods among people "who do not have the essentials of life."

Archbishop Marcos G. McGrath, CSC, of Panama, declared in an interview that some other system besides capitalism and Marxism must be found to aid the world's poor. Both Marxism and capitalism are materialistic," he said.

The prelate warned that if the Church cannot come up with an economic and political system that assures justice to masses in Latin America the danger is great that Marxism will succeed.

Besides expressing his views on socialism, the archbishop spoke about Cuba, the Panama Canal Zone and the Catholic Church's interest in Latin America.

He believes that a more equal distribution of material resources took place in Cuba under Fidel Castro, despite the fact that Cuba has serious economic problems and Cuban Communism does restrict many freedoms of the people.

Archbishop McGrath said he favors the lifting of economic sanctions against Cuba, adding that the sanctions "have made their point" and now only cause unnecessary suffering to the poor of that island country.

Referring to an article he authored for the October 1973 issue of Foreign Affairs magazine, the prelate noted that he is opposed to the Panama Canal Treaty of 1903 (between the U.S. and Panama) because "it establishes a monopoly in perpetuity, in favor of another government, over the principal natural resource of the Republic of Panama."

Archbishop McGrath, a member of the Holy Cross Fathers who was born in Panama, said he would like to see control of the Prisoner — Liberator Holy Thursday Theme

Two bishops and other religious leaders will go 'behind bars' for an ecumenical Holy Thursday rite at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 17 S. Fitzhugh.

A jail-like scene will be constructed in the historic downtown church for the service. The theme is "Jesus, a Prisoner for us; our Liberator."

Participating in the dramatic ceremony will be Bishop Robert R. Spears of the Episcopal Diocese of Rochester, Bishop Joseph L. Hogan of the Catholic Diocese, and other executive officers of the ten religious denominations of Cenesee Ecumenical Ministries (GEM). Rev. A. Claire Potter of the Genesee Valley Association of the United Church of Christ will be speaker.

Father Henry Atwell, GEM director, said the "Prisoner-Liberator" theme recalls the Gospel record that Jesus "on the first Holy Thursday was arrested, imprisoned and taken to court." The service will also reflect a statement by the Apostle Paul that there are people who "complete what is lacking in Christ's afflictions" in this arrest-prison-court situation, Father Atwell added.

The public is invited to the service, at 12:05 p.m. April 11. The Roman Catholic Mass for Holy Thursday will be celebrated afterward.

Panama Canal revert to the Panamanian people.

Speaking of the Church's role generally in Latin America, the prelate — who is one of the leading churchmen in CELAM, the Latin American Bishops Conference — said the influence of the Catholic Church in Central and South America reached a high point in the 1960s.

But, he aid, that influence "has been beceding for some time," despite the fact that one third of the world's Catholics live in Latin America

"During the last several years the Latin American Church came to a sense of its own destiny," Archbishop McGrath pointed out. "Latins came to realize that many religious attitudes and much assistance from the North were very paternalistic."

Over the years, Archbishop McGrath has warned against "religious and cultural colonialism," especially in Latin America. He has also charged that too many Christians live a "gospel of individualism" rather than the Christian Gospel which is "worldwide in its scope."
