

Motorhome Convenience Ends Mom's Vacation Blues

By DORIS ADAMS

Our family has always loved the outdoors, but until we bought our motorhome, I actually used to almost dread the thoughts of going on vacation. Packing for five people and then loading and unloading the station wagon was bad enough, but what I really dreaded was keeping three active children relatively quiet and occupied in a cramped back seat for a four or five hour drive.

Last year, we bought a motorhome and not only have we put fun back into vacationing for all of us, but we have been able to add many weekends to the time we spend outdoors.

I keep a good supply of coloring books and crayons on hand which keeps them occupied for hours. When they grow stale, out come the picture puzzles. The result is that the kids are happier and less tired, and dad and I have recovered our tranquility.

Furthermore, when we stop for a break or lunch, everything is conveniently available. No digging down through layers of cartons for sandwiches.

The gas stove and range combination also enables me to serve soup or other hot items. Indeed, a supply of canned stew, meatballs, sausages and beans assures an easy to prepare and delightful addition to luncheon meals — even sometimes dinner when I don't care to cook a full course meal.

Store Food Easily

Actually, a supply of convenience type food is always in the motorhome cupboard. For example, canned potatoes can be drained, sliced, and quickly turned into delicious pan-fries for breakfast or dinner. Canned fruit and puddings, are always on hand. Many motorhomers use instant rice, but I find that regular rice — particularly the converted types such as Uncle Ben's — can be prepared almost as quickly and easily as the instant type which is more expensive. On the other hand, packaged herb rices offer a great variety and are easily stored. I keep the rice, coffee, hot cereals, sugar and flour, in plastic screw-top containers that are conveniently stored in the cupboards. Like all kids, my three would be lost without dry cereal which they not only devour for breakfast, but sometimes for dinner and frequently as snacks. Along with all the packaged goods, they are stored in plastic bags. These and a few other staples are always on hand in the motorhome which simplifies both shopping and packing.
