

An Old Fisherman's Favorite

An old fisherman's favorite, the shore lunch, was introduced to the angler by the first Indian fishing guides.

Because it appealed to so many, it caught on as an angler's custom, even down to the basic menu.

The idea is to get out early enough to catch enough fish to feed the entire crew by noon time. Be sure to take along plenty of potatoes and hush puppy mix (pre-mixed and stored in a plastic bag). "Camp coffee" is the customary beverage and is easy to fix with coffee grounds in boiling water and a pinch of salt.

The shore lunch, an old fisherman's favorite, has been an outdoor custom since the first Indian fishing guides introduced it to the angler.
