Some Recipes
For Mealtime
At Campsite

Hearty appetites are common at mealtime in camp. To guarantee an easy to fix meal and one that will satisfy the groanings of the hungriest camper, simplicity is the key. Here are a few "camper's favorites" that will take little time to prepare and will insure you of your "fair share" of time for outdoor fun.

CAMP PIZZA

Make the dough with 2 cups Bisquick Baking Mix, 1/2 teaspoon salt, and 1/2 cup cold water. Smooth ball on floured surface and knead five times. Divide into four equal parts and pat into eight inch circles. Cook the circles of dough on a skillet until brown, about five minutes. Turn and spread with filling, cover with lid or aluminum foil until well heated through.

The filling can be made with whatever is available in camp. You can use spaghetti sauce, tomato sauce or catsup, topped with canned luncheon meat, frankfurter slices or pepperoni and grated parmesan cheese. Delicious!

HOBO BAGS

Place a fresh piece of fish or a hamburger patty on a large square of aluminum foil. Top with thinly sliced potatoes, canned corn, canned green beans and a little sliced onion. Pull the corners of the foil square up to form a pouch. Cook on grill or coals until fish or meat is done (30-45 min.). The foil is folded down for serving. A whole meal in a pouch!

HAM 'N EGG SANDWICH

The mixture can be made at home and kept in the ice chest until you prepare the sandwiches in camp. Use one hardboiled egg, one slice cooked ham, 1/4 green pepper, (all chopped) per sandwich. Add 1/4 teaspoon minced onion (per sandwich), salt, pepper and mayonnaise to taste. (Last ingredient can be added in camp if you have no refrigeration). Store in plastic bag.

At mealtime spread the mixture on a slice of bread, spread margarine on another and make a sandwich. Fry on greased skillet until well heated through. Toothpicks can be used to hold sandwiches together.

Unlike other liquid fuel, propane will not deteriorate. It is inexpensive and available almost anywhere.
