

Order Appoints Vocation Leaders

The appointment of Fathers Leo Polselli and Wilfred Raymond as vocation directors for the Holy Cross Fathers in the eastern part of the country was announced today by Father William Hogan, Provincial of the Holy Cross Fathers, Eastern Province.

Father Hogan also said the vocation office, which has been located at Stonehill College, North Easton, Mass. since 1952, will be moved to the Provincial House, Bridgeport, Conn.

As directors of vocations, the two priests will travel through the

New England and Middle Atlantic States seeking men interested in the religious life and the Holy Cross order.

The Congregation of Holy Cross, which has about 200 priests in the Eastern Province, lists 3,000 religious throughout the world who are engaged in a variety of ministries.

Members of the order operate Stonehill College in North Easton, Mass. Additional schools of higher learning include Kings College in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Notre Dame University at South Bend, Inc., and University of Portland, Ore.

Father Polselli was ordained in 1970 and previously taught at Notre Dame High School in Bridgeport. Father Raymond was also on the faculty of the high school and was ordained in 1971.
