

ON THE RIGHT SIDE

Father Paul J. Cuddy

Letter to the 40 Courier Journal pilgrims to Ireland:

In looking over the names of people for the CJ trip, I am delighted to see old friends, and new friends to be. The most astonishing couple are the Rochester Steve Rileys. This is their third trip to Ireland in one year. They are great.

Here are a few bits of useful information:

1) We land at Shannon Air Port and spend an hour there in a dreary building which looks a bit like a closed-up supermarket. It is about 8 a.m. Ireland time. All stands are closed, but coffee is available. After an hour we return to the plane for Dublin. Why do we stop? "Regulations."

2) At Dublin Air Port our luggage is put on a bus. We go to the most historic hotel in Ireland, the Gresham. It is genteel in a kind of mid-Victorian way. It is in the heart of downtown Dublin. There is an efficient Miss Mary Doran there who is secretary to the manager, and whom I dubbed "The Trouble Shooter" for her kind help to us last May. As we wait for our baggage and rooms, we rest around the lounge, and have coffee, tea, toast, marmalade and Irish butter.

3) We'll all be tired after the flight. I'm going to take a hot bath and go to bed, and get up for lunch about 1 p.m. Since we have most meals together in the hotel dining rooms, please stay together. After lunch, do what you please. For the women this seems to be a compulsive dash for the stores. However, keep in mind there are many places for shopping besides Dublin. Make haste slowly.

4) At night we go to Jury's Hotel for dinner and entertainment. As you enjoy the exhilarating and modest dancing and singing, you may be shocked to find how injured we Americans have become to our own vulgarity and bawdiness through the TV programs.

5) For the Tuesday tour of Dublin I have asked for some changes. For example, on previous tours we spent over an hour at St. Patrick's Protestant Cathedral because the guides thought we were interested in Dean Swift, Hester and Vanessa; and in the ancient cathedral. The fact is that most of our people left wondering why a Catholic cathedral, stolen centuries ago, has never been returned to the spiritual heirs of the founders. Few were interested in Dean Swift. We plan to go to the Carmelite Church of the Little Flower. Our people love the church for its beauty, its devotion, its statues, its candles, and because Archbishop Sheen has preached the Novena of the Little Flower there for many years. One of our group is Carmelite father Timothy McGough of Waverly Monastery. We expect to arrange a Mass at the Carmelite Church, with Father McGough as celebrant.

6) The Gresham is just around the corner from the Pro-Cathedral. We will have Mass in a little chapel there, at a convenient time. Mass is available to all of you, but it is not a "must." Some will want to go to a Legion of Mary meeting. This can be arranged through Mary Doran.

7) About seven minutes from the hotel is Veritas. It is on Abbey Street, just off O'Connell. It is a religious store run by the Catholic Truth Society. It has a great supply of prayer-books, medals, beads, pictures, pamphlets, books and catechetical material. It was there I met my friend, young Frank Moore, who has charge of the tapes for the catechetical department. If you want religious material, this is a good opportunity. Perhaps Tuesday afternoon.

Travel Tip Travel light. Ireland has anything you might need. Just pack the barest necessities, and the medicines you need. Bend with the breezes. Travel can be trying. When something disagreeable does happen, consider it a dash of extra pepper in a delicious salad. Relax. Be friendly with the native Irish. Sincere graciousness is the key to friendship. This tour is unhurried. Enjoy it, and bring back memories to savor in the years to come.

Deaths

W. D. Shick

Hornell — The Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated for William D. Shick Aug. 29, 1974, in St. Ann's Church.

Mr. Shick, 45, was stricken at work in South Canisteo and died Aug. 26. His mother, Mrs. William C. Shick of Kenmore, died shortly after receiving the news.

Mr. Shick was a carpentry and masonry instructor for the Steuben County Board of Cooperative Educational Services. He was a trustee of the New York State Vocational Industrial Clubs of America. At St. Ann's, he was a lector and CCD Board member. He was secretary of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship, and was associated also with the Ultreya, Cursillo and the Men's Retreat League. He lived at 63 Jane St.

Survivors include his widow, Anita, and six children, David, of Rochester, and Martha, Judith, Rebecca, John and Matthew, at home; his father, a brother, Brad, of North Canton, O., and a sister, Mrs. John Klug of Syracuse.

Drug Workshops Open For Fall

At seven places in the Rochester area, the Drug and Alcohol Council is setting up workshops designed to teach counseling and planning skills and to produce insights into the problem of alcohol and other drugs.

The workshops are open to anyone 17 years of age or older. Tuition fee is $35 for the 12-week course, but it may be reduced or waived under certain circumstances.

Further information may be obtained through (716) 454-2535.
