Justice Emmett Schnepf, chairman of the board, and Bishop James E. Kearney at ground breaking for new college-community center at Nazareth College.

Students Lisa Fanelli and Chris Hickey take part in the college-community picnic that interrupted the daylong open house activities.

'Equity' Pursued At Regents Hearing

Non-public schools should have the use of buses for field trips and the loan of certain instructional materials wherever these are provided to public schools, the Catholic School Administrators Association of New York State told the Board of Regents at a hearing Sept. 10.

The association asked for legislation to mandate these services, and their executive director, Brother Peter Pontolillo, SM, assured the regents that "we shall continue to seek equity under the law without asking for any tax money for worship or catechism."

Referring to the Supreme Court decision upholding the Federal title programs that benefit children in non-public schools, Brother Peter said it "leads us to believe that the Justices have finally recognized that the 'logical' end of the 'no-aid doctrine' amounts to discrimination against citizens who believe in organized religion, rather than professing the tenets of Secular Humanism, by denying them any share in their tax money."

The New York Supreme Court ordered the equitable provision of field trip busing in Hamburg in December. Legislation requested would extend this decision to all the districts of the state without the costly process of litigation in the various districts.
