

Ceilings . . .

Drop It to Pick It Up!

Dropping the ceiling. That's what many smart decorators are doing to revitalize a room.

The ceiling is not as inconspicuous as one might think. A poor-looking ceiling will stick out like a sore thumb, no matter how great the rest of the room is put together.

Dropping the ceiling with acoustical tiles will give it an even, clean surface that will need little or no care. It can also help to soundproof the room. And it's an inexpensive method for covering cracked, rough or stained ceilings yourself!

The standard method for installation on rough, uneven ceilings involves nailing up wood furring strips first (strips of wood about 1/2" wide by 3/4" thick) then stapling the tiles to these. Some remodelers use a new type of metal furring.

Whatever the method, installation is fairly easy, and there is a wide variety of fashionable tiles on the market to fit into any room décor.

Presto: from garage to playroom!

If you are looking for ways to expand your present living quarters, it's a safe bet that you have up to 20 per cent or more of your home devoted to storing garden tools, bicycles and the like, reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

Most people use their garages for storage and park their cars in the driveway. If you do, don't you think it will be better to use the space as a playroom, den or bedroom, and build a small shed to house the garden tools, etc.?

Converting an attached garage to living space is probably the simplest and least expensive way to add room to your house. Since the foundation, footings and exterior framing are already in place, all that needs to be done is to replace the garage door with a window, add lighting, interior walls, floor tile and heat.

If the house is equipped with hydronics (modern hot water heating), connecting it to an attached garage is a cinch.
