School Sharing

By JOAN M. SMITH

Over at St. Agnes High School, a time is set aside each year for faculty members, students and alumni to share their talents in celebrating "Shareholders' Day."

This year's event, Thursday, Oct. 2, was filled with a variety of activities which displayed the talents of the participants. Students as well as instructors devoted their time and abilities to introduce each other to a multitude of diversified experiences.

Creativity and physical expertise were the order of the day as arts, crafts, music, drama and sports were actively demonstrated.

Those interested in arts and crafts were introduced to macrame, knitting, crocheting, sketching, basket-making, plaquing and embroidery. Others visited drama workshops and jazz demonstrations and discussions.

There were black poetry readings along with music sessions featuring the flute, harp, classical guitar and lute.

Folk, ballet, tap and belly dancing techniques also were presented while those who converged on the gym were greeted with gymnastic and karate exhibitions followed by basketball games.

"Shareholders' Day" provided an enjoyable break from the school routine, and because of enthusiastic planning and participation it proved to be a successful venture.

'Just Us' At St. Agnes

Twenty freshmen and sophomores will be getting together for an afternoon and evening of sharing on Friday, Oct. 17 from 3:30 to 9 p.m.

The event entitled "Just Us" will include a pizza supper and will end with a special mass.

The Prayer Center of the Sisters of St. Joseph on Mt. Vernon Avenue will provide the setting.

National Merit Commendations

Four Notre Dame seniors received National Merit Letters of Commendation. They are Karen Droleski, Marianne Mangels, Kevin Seaman, and Karen Wisniewski.

The intricacies of "bread dough" are shown sophomore Elizabeth OuYang by Mrs. Vicki Kelly an English teacher.
