

The investigating officer will be important to the success of the program, as he can refer victims and witnesses to the assistance center for help.

Helping Victims:

The center will work with the District Attorney, helping witnesses and victims prepare to testify.

The center will act as a liaison between the district attorney and the witness. Howard K. Relin, an assistant district attorney, discusses an upcoming case while a service worker looks on.

The various court rooms located in two different buildings can be confusing to a witness who has never had any dealing with the criminal justice system.

Photos by Susan McKinney
Text by Martin Toombs