

John Anderson, left, and August Viehweger are dressed in authentic uniforms of the colonial period for guard duty outside the display area.

Merv Stanton greets youngsters arriving to visit the display.

CW2 Danny Kasprzyk, a member of the U.S. Army National Guard, explains the UH-1H helicopter.

Bicentennial Event

The past was re-lived during the week of May 10 at St. Joseph's Hospital in Elmira when special displays traced the history of hospitals in the United States from revolutionary days up to the present.

Besides local volunteers and officials, the displays involved members of the 816th Station Hospital of the Army Reserve of Binghamton, the Army National Guard from Niagara Falls, the Skil Bilt Fence Co. of Elmira Heights, BOCES students, and others.

Though exhibits included the very modern MASH-type

"Injured soldier" lies on bed of straw.