Participation cut through age groups — babysitting services were provided. Bob Follmer, a Christian magician entertained youngsters by transmitting Christian messages through his magic act. The Senior Center of Spencerport helped plan and took part in the event.

Father Phil Kelly, a Holy Cross priest, and the Rev. Leonard Evans, of the Pleasant Valley Evangelical Church in Niles, Ohio, were among the speakers and clergymen of all stripes took part in panels, seminars and other events.

Seminars also ran the gamut — Marriage and the Family, Joys of Retirement, the Christian Athlete, Christian Ethics in Business, Peer Pressure and the Teenager, for example.

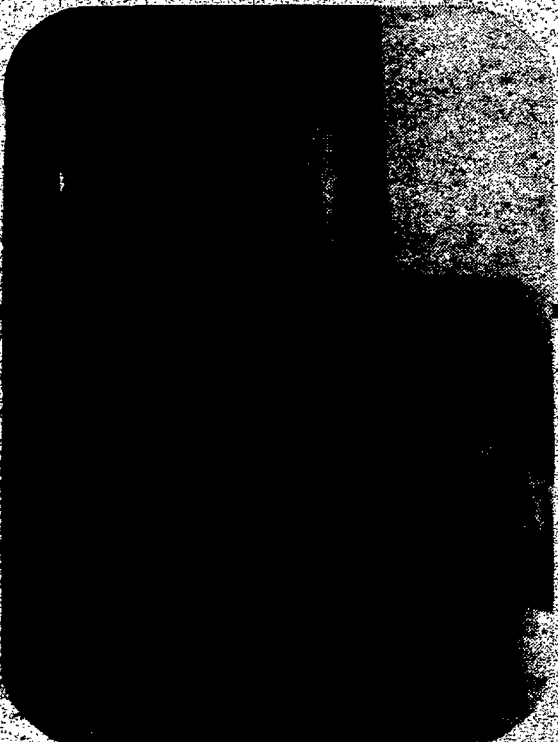

A "reaction" sheet was passed and a spokesman said that the response was overwhelmingly favorable. Many asked that One in Christ become an annual event, others wanted meetings more often, others requested more youth involvement, youths asked more involvement, etc., etc.

The Trowbridge School building was used as the center of events, keynoting community participation.

One in Christ? From all indicators, the answer is affirmative.
