Eucharistic Congress Day

Students from St. Catherine of Siena School in Pittsburgh march in procession to an outdoor altar constructed for the cn in procession to an outdoor after constructed for the parish's Eucharistic Congress Day. The more than 400 students in the parish school spent the day completing their posters on themes of the 41st International Eucharistic Congress to be held in August in Philadelphia, in workshops and in making private visits to the after. The day closed with an evening Mass for the adults and children of the parish and a procession back to the church. (RNS)

"I was a young girl of 15 at-tending a Catholic high school much like your own," related Mrs Gerda Klein to her audience during a recent visit to Nazareth Academy. A survivor of Hitler's concentration camps, Mrs. Klein now lives in Buffalo, speaks extensively to young people in high schools, college and at interfaith meetings She serves as vice president of the Silver Circle of Rosary Hill College.

In September, 1939 the Nazis occupied her home town of Bielitz, Poland, and after three years in the ghettos she was deported to Sosmowitz, a transit camp, and then to númerous concentration camps: In January, 1945 she was forced on the 1,000 mile death March" from Silesia to Czechoslovakia She was among the 120 survivors liberated on May 6, 1945 by U.S. forces

The horror of German Nazism and the resolution that such a system should never arise again was a primary concern of the 1945 Conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) On December: 10, 1948 the General Assembly approved a Universal Declaration of Human Rights based on the premise that recognition of the inherent dignity and the equal and inalienable rights for all members of the human family is the foun-dation of freedom, justice and peace in the world

The Declaration came three years after the close of World War II with its disclosure of the Nazi holocaust. It was hailed by Pope John XXIII in a 1963 Encyclical Letter. "The document," he wrote, "represents an important step on the path toward juridical-political organization of the world community. For in it, in most solemn form, the dignity of a person is acknowledged to all human beings."

Yet, in 1973; Amnesty In-ternational in its "Report on Torture" stated ____ "what for the last two or three hundred years has been no more then a historical curiosity has suddenly developed a life of its own and become a social
