Nazareth President:

Problem: To Educate Men When Women Are Equal

Auburn — "A problem in college education for tomorrow in a fast changing world will be the preparation of men to live in a world where women are equal," said Robert Kidera, first male president of Nazareth College.

Kidera was participating in a living room dialogue with area alumnae at the home of Judy Davis on Nov. 10.

He pointed out that the strength of Nazareth College has been in its Education of women, but now he looks to the school to provide leadership in the concept of co-equal education and to be fully sensitive to the changing roles of women in society. The college will create a type of co-equal education by continuing to specialize in women's education with a parallel track for men.

Kidera stated his belief that society will undergo a great revolution in the next 10 years with women attaining full equality of rights, combining family and careers, and developing new relationships in the family. The student of today, he said, must be educated for the world 20 years from now.

Installed formally as president of Nazareth in October, he assumed the presidency July 1, after the retirement of Dr. Alice Foley. A veteran of 30 years in administrative and academic posts in higher education, he was president of Sacred Heart University in Bridgeport, Conn. He also has held posts at Fordham, Cornell and Marquette.

He reported that a two-year nursing program, open to men and women hospital and community college nursing graduates, has been initiated in response to local needs.

It is expected to be a popular curriculum because of the growth of nursing homes and geriatric nursing.

Church Construction Planned By Horseheads Committees

Horseheads — Lay involvement has been the center of the planning process for a new church to be built by the Church of St. Mary our Mother, according to Father Bartholomew O'Brien, pastor. The 20-member building committee, chaired by John Kremer, has been studying the needs and resources of the parish since March 1975. Their work was preceded by a committee studying the feasibility of construction, which worked from June 1974 until January 1975.

The committee's work resulted in a July 30, 1976 letter from Bishop Joseph L. Hogan, telling the parish "I approve of support the construction of a new house of worship at the Church of St. Mary our Mother."

Discussing the planning effort, Father O'Brien cited the work of the committee, emphasizing that the planning and study necessary for the project were the responsibility of laypeople, who determined what was needed and wanted for their parish of 1400 families.

A 14-page report was approved by the Building Committee on Sept.

29, and by the Parish Council Oct. 1, detailing many of the features the committee wants included in the church, with a seating capacity of 750-800 persons. Currently architects are being interviewed and it is expected one will be hired in January. Plans call for an architect's report by March 1 that will propose the shape, basic design and position of the construction on the property presently owned by the parish, at Broad Street, Westlake Street and Rt. 14 in Horseheads.

Construction is not expected to begin before Spring of 1978. A fund drive is scheduled for Spring of 1977, to raise $400,000 of the projected $750,000 cost. The remainder will be covered by a mortgage and an existing building fund.

The 110-year old parish has not had a church building since the former church, constructed in 1903, was closed in 1965, as it had become too small for the parish's needs. Since then, a chapel in the school has been used for Masses.
