

Cacu

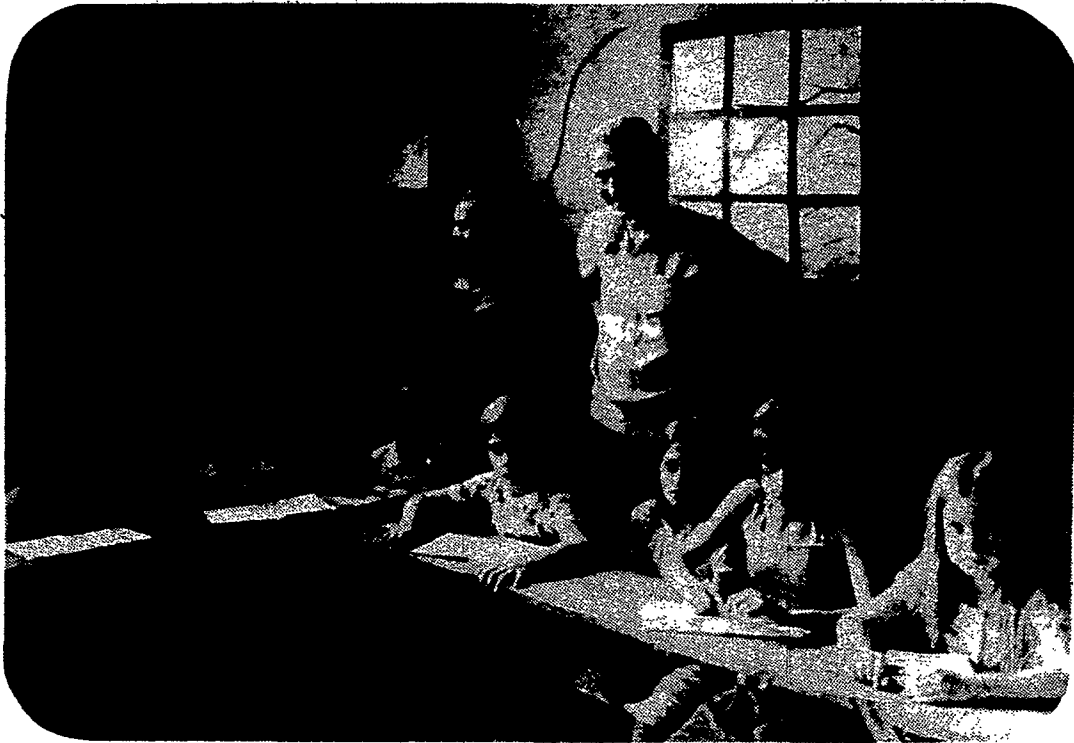

This little girl lives under a bridge. Her stomach is distended from worms, a common infection of Brazilian children.

About six families, too destitute to afford any housing, live under a bridge in Cacu, the abutments forming their walls. Here a group gathers to chat with Sister Ellen.

A pig eats out of a dish. Moments before it and a child ate together from the same dish.

Sister Ellen, catechist Maria Lazara and pastor Father Cullum of Sacred Heart of Jesus parish with First Communion class.

Love, Hands Together reads the sign. Sisters work with better-off women who collect food to be distributed among the poor. That's Sister Jean Bellini at left.

Bishop Hogan bids farewell to Sister Ellen and the housekeeper at Sacred Heart parish in Cacu.
