PAroundRapAroundRapAroundRapAr Founding the 51st State

BY JOAN M. SMITH

"Talk slow" were the guiding words that Bishop Kearney senior Kathy Cavuto wrote above the speech she delivered while campaigning for State Commissioner of Social Services. Kathy along with Patricia Yahn from Cardinal Mooney and Vincenette Smith of St. Agnes were among the 300 young women who attended the Empire Girls State program at Albany State University during the week of June 26.

Empire Girls State is an educational program sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary and it endeavors to instruct young women about the privileges of the vote, the formation of political parties, and the process of choosing and electing leaders to fill governmental offices.

What took the 50 states over 200 years to accomplish, the girls did in one week; formulate the governmental foundation for the 51st mythical state. They zealously participated in rallies, seminars, campaigns, speeches and legislative workshops Although at first, they said there wasn't too much enthusiasm for the program's format because of the regimentation, confusion and the fact they had to get up at 6 a.m. to be ready for business at 7 and then working until 11 p.m. But after the first day everyone's opinion changed and Kathy best summed up the experience. 'Nothing in my life will again be that beneficial."

The first order of business was the formation of two political parties, the Nationalists and Federalists, which in turn were split into wards and officers elected. From this group the nominees were selected to run for the top state posts, Governor, Lt. Governor, Comptroller, Attorney General and Secretary of State.

Vincenette was ward secretary and was kept busy recording meeting minutes as well as supplying the in-house newspaper, Echos of Empire State, with party information.

Kathy was unsuccessful in her bid for Commissioner of Welfare but enjoyed being a senator who participated in legislative debates regarding the proposed bills.

The girls emphasized that their party platforms and legislation underscored the social areas which this generation is concerned about and will have to deal with; marijuana, welfare reform, child abuse, living wills, civil rights, conservation and rape prevention.

According to Kathy, in legislatively enacting the marijuana bill the only debatable item was the amount of substance that would be considered a misdemeandr. In their welfare reform they sought stricter

Legislation for the living will gave the right requirement that every return to her cheerleading to citizens over 18 to obtain a living will on the basis of a medical certificate declaring competency. The rape prevention bill was enacted so that the citizens would be advised on safety precautions and the actions to take when confronted with rape. The bill included two sections; a mandatory health curriculum
