

Around Rap Around Rap Around Rap Around

Equal Time

Do you have a hero?

NOTRE DAME

JEFF SOBKOWSKI
senior, football

"I admire Rich Swan, who was Notre dame's receiver coach, who more or less made me what I am today. He was a Little All America in college at Union. I admire him because of his dedication to Notre Dame and to the game of football. It is important to have heroes to center your life on. Knowing him helps because I have something to aim for in life."

MIKE GUSTIN
junior, track

"My hero is Dwight Stones, because I am also a high-jumper in track, I like the way he acts, his style, and the way at the last Olympics he handled himself with the T-shirt. He's an all-around guy. I'd like to be like him; he's also an excellent athlete. I try to copy his style. I've read a few things he said on how to high jump and I've learned from it."

MARK SEAMAN
senior, Honor Society

"I admire Steve Martin, because he provides relief from the troubles of everyday society with his unique brand of comedy. He is a person who can be admired for his ability to make light of the world's situation, while still being concerned about it. I don't try to copy him, but he is still an inspiration and a model, although not someone to be copied as much as looked up to."

MIKE BUCKLEY
sophomore, track

"Yes, Bruce Jenner, because he's involved in track and he's worked hard to get where he is and it shows that Americans can stay with everybody else. His example shows that persons can be good if they work hard; self-discipline does work. He gave me a lot of inspiration last year. I did play football, but I decided to go with track when I saw what he did for the country."

MARGIE CADY
junior, basketball

"I don't have any specific hero. I look up to honest people, sociable people, someone that's not a phony. Teenagers should be themselves, but looking up to another person can be good and they could take the example, how to act, from them."

BARB SPALLONE
freshman

"No one in particular. I look up to adults a lot for guidance on everyday problems and understanding. It helps to have someone to look up to, someone I can lean on, someone I can turn to. It is important for most teenagers to have someone to look up to, because they need help and guidance and they need somebody to talk to about their problems."

KATHY ATKINSON
freshman

"I can't really think of a certain one, but I admire outgoing people, and honest people, and I try to be more like them. I try to improve myself by studying their example. If I see someone who is honest and truthful, I try to be more like them. I tend to do that with my friends. It is important for teenagers to have models. A lot of people are against teenagers and put them down even though they have a lot of potential; no one gives them a chance. Good models will help them."

RON TRYON
sophomore, basketball

"Yes, my brother, because of the things he did. He played basketball here and went on to the University of North Carolina. He went out for the JV team and made it, and when he was a sophomore, he was captain. Now he's decided to quit basketball and get down to studies, which is more important. I look up to him. I try to follow in his footsteps. It helps looking up to him, to see what he has done."

Photo by Susan McKinney

Festival of Culture

Coordinators for the Mercy Arts Festival, May 3-5, were senior Linda Hahn, Mrs. Theresa Momberger, teacher and Patti Hockenbrock who is also a senior.

Aquinas to Host Track Meets

The fifteenth annual Aquinas relay competition will be at the University of Rochester's Fauver Stadium, Saturday, May 20. All events are scheduled to begin at 11 a.m.

Schools from throughout New York State will compete including Sweet Home and Burgard Vocational, St. Joseph's and the Nichols School from Buffalo; West Genesee from Syracuse and Brooklyn Tech from New York. Rochester, City-Catholic League teams as well as two county league schools, Penfield and Sperry of Rush-Henrietta, are entered.

MAKE A CAREER OUT OF CARING — CHOOSE NURSING

Albany Medical Center School of Nursing is now accepting additional qualified students for admission this September. In just three years you can receive a diploma that will open the door to licensure as a professional nurse. Men and women who graduate from AMCSN's excellent educational program are in great demand by employers. AMCSN's entire clinical program is conducted at Albany Medical Center, one of upstate New York's leading medical institutions. Tuition for the entire three-year program is LOW — only $1850. Free room and meal allowance are provided. Scholarships and loans are available to qualified applicants.

START NOW ON YOUR WAY TO BECOMING A PROFESSIONAL NURSE. APPLY NOW. WRITE TO

Director
Albany Medical Center
School of Nursing
Department 8C
Albany, New York 12208

THE COLLEGE OF STEUBENVILLE

... experience a total way of life!

We have a vision for a college where quality academics are offered in a person-centered, faith environment. In this environment, community support relationships are given a chance to grow.

If Helping Us Live Out This Vision Excites You

WRITE: Admissions
The College of Steubenville
Franciscan Way
Steubenville, OH 43952
(614) 283-3771

A total education for the total person.