Mooney Teacher To Study in Egypt

By Joan M. Smith

Brother Stephen LaMandola, chairman of Cardinal Mooney's Social Studies department, calls himself "a vacation pianist" because that's the only time he has in which to pursue his musical interest. But recently he found out that this summer will be too busy for him to reacquaint himself with the piano. He's not complaining, however — far from it. He's exuberant over the cause — a study trip to Egypt.

Br. Stephen LaMandola

A soft-spoken man, Brother LaMandola, can't help hiding his excitement when talking about the U.S. Office of Education's grant he received for a study project to the Middle East. The program will include a week's study at the State University at Fredonia and then it will be off to Egypt, July 10-Aug. 22. There he will participate in lectures at the University of Alexandria as well as field trips to Cairo, Suez Canal and upper Egypt.

trips through the U. S. have aided him in the classroom.

Brother, who has been teaching for eight years, came to Mooney in September, 1977. He completed his undergraduate work at St. Francis College in Brooklyn and received his MA in Education from Xavier University in Cincinnati. He has taught all subjects except English but his favorite is Social Studies.

To receive the grant, Brother had to supply the Education Office with a resume, letters from Mooney's administration and a project proposal. The program he submitted concerned a curriculum unit on the Arab Middle East which the trip will reinforce with actual experience. Brother is definite about the advantages of on-the-spot learning. "It adds a certain dimension to one's teaching which can't be substituted by book learning," he said. He acknowledged that even his "Social Studies," he claimed, "gives you a broader view of an area including its geography, sociology and political history."

And there is no doubt in Brother's mind that it will be his freshman-sophomore Social Studies classes which will benefit from his summer experiences.

the ballet group. She will be assisted by Tina Cognata who as an advanced student of jazz dance will instruct that group. Dance classes in both groups will begin at 9 a.m. There will be dance films, lunch will be provided and there will be afternoon preparation for a performance situation on Friday, July 14. Appreciation of dance will be incorporated in the program which will close with a trip to the Saratoga Performing Arts Center on July 15.
