St. Lawrence School Combines Old and New

What will be new at St. Lawrence School. Sept. 1978? Besides a new high in registration there will be many new books and library materials. An enrichment day is being scheduled for each semester. The Fall enrichment day will focus on a greater understanding of physical handicaps. St. Lawrence students in grades 1-8 will listen to speakers, see films and participate in activities that will heighten their awareness of people with handicapped conditions.

Something old will be given a new emphasis this year. The school has always been strong in the basics and this year that trend will be continued with special attention to good written expression. Students on every level and in every subject will be working on perfecting their writing skills. Special projects and displays of students' work will help motivate the young writers. Plans for the publication of creative student writing each semester are underway.

On the first day of school this year each student at St. Lawrence will receive a new student handbook. The booklet is the result of joint efforts on the part of students, the school board, and the faculty. It covers everything from a school philosophy on the first page to the regulations for field trips on the last.

transmission towers, utility poles, or electric lines of any kind. Tell them anyone who does is playing with death. Every electric line and cable carries potentially fatal amounts of electric current. You don't even have to touch anything to get electrocuted. If you get very close to high voltage cables, electricity can jump short distances through the air and deliver /a shock. A shock/ that can kill. So warn your children to stay away from electric facilities. Please, do it now and help us prevent a tragedy. ROCHESTER GAS AND ELECTRIC
