LLOYD'S INSURES THE BEST

By Peter Fraver

Lloyd's of London insures the Loch Ness Monster. Lloyd's of 289 Alexander St., upon whose walls reside photos of the policy holding serpent, insures a less elusive, but equally tantalizing client — one of the best food and drink spots in town.

Owners William Bocci, Peter Schuster, and John Mehringer opened Lloyd's on July 7 and were among award winners in the restoration campaign sponsored by Lincoln First Bank. General Manager Brad Wescott has transformed Lloyd's into a quiet, personal house, specializing in American and Continental dishes which include Chateaubriand, Veal

Alexander, Steak au Poivre, and Fettucini Royal. These entrees are complemented by an extensive, moderately priced wine list.

The house serves lunch weekdays from 11:30 to 2, and serves dinner 5:30 to 11 every night including weekends.

There are linen and flowers in the dining room and polished wood and sparkling glass in the down and upstairs bars.

The policy at Lloyd's is to ensure service, personal attention, and fine food. Like their British namesakes, they lay their reputation on the fact they always pay up.

"It is our policy to insure the best"
