If you could be whoever you wanted (living or dead) who would you choose?"

"I'm undecided about what I want to do — I will either be a scientist or a priest. If a scientist, I'd want to be Albert Einstein because of his intelligence. He wouldn't accept other's theories but would formulate his own ideas. When he was in school no one thought he'd succeed.

If a priest, I want to be Teilhard de Chardin the Jesuit theologian because I'm interested in his writings and I like the way he thinks about God and the nature of man.

CHRIS PALERMO Junior

"I'd pick Hubert Humphrey because he was a politician who seemed to be honest and cared about the people. He did a lot right up until the time he died. He was respected by all the people, He was very active and led a very interesting life. A lot of politicians seem to be concerned only about themselves rather than with the people.

ANTHONY SOLAZZO Senior

"John F. Kennedy. He was such an outstanding statesman, athlete and war hero everything he did he did well. He had an understanding of people and could speak well — knew how to get his point across. These I think are important traits for anyone to have. He excelled in everything.

I'd live the exact same way as he did. He was a family man — important to him was the closeness with his brothers and sisters.'

CHRIS DIPASQUALE Junior dramatics

'Walter Cronkite would be a good choice. He has a lot of national exposure and he seems to be in the thick of all that's exciting. Whenever they blastoff into space or have a presidential election, he's there — he's the big man on the scene. He seems to be honest and he doesn't try to put anything over on the people. He's respected and he knows a lot about what he's talking about."

BILL GIBBONS Senior euchre club

"There's no one in particular though I admire courage. I play football so two people come to mind — Joe Roth who played college football and Brian Picciolo who played for the Chicago Bears. They both had terminal cancer and still made the best of their lives. They overlooked it and made the best of it. Their determination when knowing they had the deadly disease yet kept plugging away. They gave 100 per cent all of the time. They were inspiration to those lives they touched."

GARY MURRER Freshman basketball

"Probably Roger Staubach of the Dallas Cowboys because I like him. I think he really knows how to play the game. It's his ability to play the game as well as his personality which has made him popular."

TOM BAGLIO Senior hockey

"Bobby Orr. First of all he worked hard, had a lot of determination and made the National Hockey League at age 18. He had to put up with a lot of problems like six knee operations but he came through. He had the guts to quit when he realized he couldn't help his team. I admire him for his integrity for example, not spending the 3 million dollar contract money because he felt he hadn't earned it.'

DAVE CONDELLO Sophomore bowling

"Mark Roth, the best pro bowler in the world. He néver shows anger on the alleys, he: remains calm, keeps cool under pressure and is very disciplined. No matter what you do in life these are important traits. He's earned over $100,000 in a vear and he's the best bowler on the pro bowler tour. That's my goal. I want to be a pro bowler and the best there is.'

Kings on Parade

Xerox Square, downtown, opened its skating rink Monday, Nov. 20. There for the festivities were the Bishop Kearney Marching Kings. Twirling to selections from Star Wars were Beth Aspenleiter, (foreground), Jeannine Schoen and Leslie Allen.

Exploring High School

St. Agnes students sponsored a Little Sister Day for the purpose of showing their little sisters and friends what the school is all about. The visitors went to classes, had free time with their big sisters and participated in games. Above, freshman Sue Blake determines the freezing point of mothballs while watched by little sister Joanne Graff.

Speaking Out

By MICHAEL BIALASZEWSKI Bishop Kearney

Work is sometimes looked on as a heavy burden. Sometimes people look at work as something to do, either by chance, force or desire. But whatever the definition, work allows us to obtain goals. Usually people do something they like by applying their talents to work. This may cover a wide field.

When people work they develop special skills and a sense of responsibility. They may find that this does not come easy but when obtained there is a sense of self-satisfaction.

The most common goal is material gain. Whether for a car, a house, a piece of property or even wedding rings, they are all obtained through work.

Therefore, you put time and effort into work but you get something out of

Now let's think about what type of jobs teenagers can do. If you are under sixteen, you can obtain jobs like a paper route, cutting grass, babysitting or shoveling snow. If you are over sixteen you may have a greater variety of part-time jobs to choose from. You can work in a supermarket, gas station, cook hamburgers, wash lettuce, run a cash register or even pick pumpkins!

With all the competition in the job market, you must assert yourself when applying for a job that you might like. You must be willing to work hard but someday it will pay off. Just think, if you start off as a stock boy, someday you might be the manager or even president!

Since most of us are not born millionaires we must resign ourselves to a life of work. Therefore, when choosing a career take into consideration your potential and what you would like to do with your life. One of the worst things that could happen would be to get stuck in a job that you hate. Try to pick a job or career that presents a challenge; in other words, something which will never get monotonous. And finally, to coin an old phrase, work will keep you "healthy, " wealthy and wise".
