Immaculate Conception Visited by Love Inn School

By MARTIN TOOMBS Southern Tier Editor

Ithaca—It's not too often that the student body of one school visits another, and it is probably more unusual when both schools are religious, but not the same religion.

But such a visit took place Jan. 24, when the students of Love Inn School, Freeville, visited Immaculate Conception School.

Love Inn is a Christian community founded in 1969 in a renovated barn on Dryden Road in Freeville, north of Ithaca. The school, with 83 students from pre-school through the tenth grade, is one of the programs in the building.

visited Imstudents maculate Conception accompanied by their principal, Ragnhild Kjeldaas, and some volunteer parents. The visitors went into classes near their own age, splitting into three groups: about 25 in grades one through three; 25 in grades four through six; and four students above sixth.

In the classrooms, the students asked questions of each other. In the first grade, the questions dealt with such things as schedules and lunch periods. In the fourth grade, Immaculate Conception students, preparing for their first Sacrament of Reconciliation, explained that to their visitors.

The Love Inn's students in grades seven, eight, nine and ten, one to each grade, visited Immaculate Conception's seventh and eighth grades. The students saw advantages and disadvantages to each other's school.

The Immaculate Conception eighth graders liked the Love Inn students' three-fourths of an hour for lunch, the weekly field trips, and the absence of uniforms at the Love Inn.

But they also found out that corporal punishment is used at the Love Inn School, which they didn't think they'd like, and that the school has no sports teams because of its size.

Both groups of students seemed to enjoy the exchange.

Before their visit to the school, the Love Inn students were taken on a tour of Immaculate Conception Church by Father John Glogowski.

St. Patrick's, Owego To Add Kindergarten

Owego—St. Patrick's School will be offering a fullday kindergarten beginning in September.

Presently, St. Patrick's has no kindergarten.

Sister Miriam Nugent, school principal, explained that "our enrollment is down, and we want to do something about it." After consideration of ways to increase enrollment, the decision was made to add the kindergarten, she reported. The move also

School's Week Events Planned

Horseheads—St. Mary Our Mother School will observe the Catholic Schools week theme Next to the family, the Catholic School" through several activities the week of Feb. 4-11.

To strengthen the bond of family and school, students' families are encouraged to attend the 9:30 a.m. Mass Sunday, Feb. 4, at which students will be lectors and gift bearers.

On Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, students will participate in mini-sessions, special learning experiences not normally available in the regular curriculum.

Friday will be Grandparents Day, with the grandparents invited to take part in a day at school.

In the days preceding Catholic Schools Week, students will be adding family portraits to a large mural decorating the hall, signifying each family's contributions to the life of the school.

will aid parents, she noted, as they will not have to send their children to the public schools for kindergarten and then to St. Patrick's for first

Sister reported that she has "already had a good response" and she expects a "good enrollment" for the class. Registration for the coming school year is Feb. 21, she

An advantage with the fullday sessions, she noted, is that the students can be included under the school's current tuition structure. That means that a family with students already at St. Patrick's can send a child to the kindergarten with no further

The full-day program also has greater potential benefit for the students, she noted, and is something not otherwise available locally.

Sister Miriam also pointed out that the school has students from the neighboring parishes of St. Margaret Mary, Apalachin, St. Francis, Catatonk, and St. John the Evangelist, Newark Valley, and she encourages parents of those parishes to consider St. Patrick's School for their children:
