THOUGHTS TO CONSIDER

"Sharing"

EDWIN SULEWSKI
FUNERAL DIRECTOR

Thinking back, you can probably remember several times in your life when your emotions ran high - times when life seemed truly worth living. The ability to enjoy life - to relax and delight in some of the wonderful things it offers - make up the good times. And sharing this happiness with others makes the experience even richer. Likewise, we can all remember more troubled moments - perhaps even a time so difficult that we felt life really wasn't worth continuing. These moments, too, are better shared with others. The death of someone you love is one of those times and, as funeral directors, we have helped many people as they face this hard reality. Our years of experience have made us able to offer genuine assistance at a time when it is much needed. The services we offer extend far beyond the funeral itself - if you have questions we answer, please call at any time.
