

A Bishop — His Family And His Friends

Bishop Clark poses with his sister, Mrs. Helen Clark Early, and his mother, Mrs. Grace Bills Clark.

Bishop Clark lifts aloft a hand-painted scroll, gift of the parishioners at St. Lawrence Church. The legend on the scroll reads, from Isaiah, "How beautiful upon the mountain tops are the feet of those who bring the good news." The scroll was signed by hundreds of the parishioners, a testament of welcome over which Bishop Clark quipped, "I'll give two jars of jelly beans to anyone who guesses the number of signatures." Directly behind the bishop is Father Peter Bayer. From the left are Sister Theresa of Marymount, Mrs. Helen Mura and Sister Michaeline, principal of Marymount.

Bishop Clark shares a laugh with his brother-in-law James Early.

A handshake for Father Charles Kelly, vice rector of the North American College and priest of the Diocese of Richmond.

Photos by Anthony J. Costello

At the North American College there was a gathering of (left to right) Seminary Richard Futie, Bishop Clark, Msgr. William Murphy of Boston, and Sisters Clare Horn and Margaret Treacy of Marymount.

