HOW TO CUT UP A WHOLE CHICKEN...

1. Begin by cutting off legs. Cut skin between thighs and body of chicken.
2. Lift chicken and bend back legs, grasping one leg with each hand. Bend legs until hip joints are loose.
3. Remove leg from body by cutting from back to front as close as possible to the back bone.
4. Then separate thigh and drumstick. Locate joint by squeezing between thigh and drumstick. Cut through joint.
5. To remove wing from body, start cutting on inside of wing just over the joint. Cut down and around the joint. To make the wing lie flat, make a small cut on the inside of the large wing joint. Cut just deep enough to expose the bones. Repeat with wing on other side.
6. To cut body into breast and back sections, place the chicken on neck end and cut from tail along each side of back bone through rib joints to breast. Cut through the skin that attaches the neck-and-back strip to the breast. Place neck-and-back strip skin side up on a cutting board. Cut into two pieces just above the spoon-shaped bones in the back.
7. Place breast skin side down on cutting board. Cut through white cartilage at the V of the neck.
8. Hold breast firmly with both hands and bend back both sides. Push with fingers to snap out breastbone. Cut breast in half lengthwise.
